100 FORTRESS PLANES BLAST GERMAN BASES

Biggest U. S. Bombing Raid of War Made Over Lille, France, Region.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 — More than [illegible] States bombers attacked the industrial Lille region [illegible] France today in the [illegible] American bomber and [illegible] ever to take the [illegible] European war theater.

The [illegible] States army air forces [illegible] fields, promising a more [illegible] announcement later, issued [illegible] communique:

"[illegible] squadrons of fighters [illegible] this operation."

A [illegible]t of the bombing force, [illegible]inary number for a [illegible] fair, was made up of [illegible]-motored flying fortresses [illegible] the Americans were [illegible] the assault by the RAF and many squadrons of allied [illegible]

Fighter Escort

The fortress bombers and escorting fighters—many of which were Spitfires and Hurricanes [illegible] by United States pilots—[illegible]t to what was believed to be [illegible] the largest daylight operation of its kind in the war.

The objectives were not disclosed immediately but the raid apparently was aimed primarily at the Lille region, the big industrial area of northern France.

The blow came only 48 hours after the United States army commander had warned French workers through a BBC broadcast to move away from the vicinity of French war factories which were [illegible] for the Germans.

Planes Seen Returning

Observers on the coast reported that the bomber force alone numbered more than 100 planes.

The operation was first observed when squadrons of Spitfires returned from the direction of Calais and Cape Gris Nez on the French side. Larger formations of fighters soon were fanning out toward the French and Belgian coasts.

Then the largest formation of United States bombers yet seen in Britain with a big escort of Spitfires and Hurricanes, droned out over the channel past Ramsgate. Soon after, glistening United States fighters bound back from the direction of Dieppe, dived out of the sun toward Folkestone.

Canadian fighter squadrons were understood to have formed part of the fortress' convoy.

Seaman Who Escaped As Bataan, Corregidor Fell Visits Home in Marion

By HALLIE HOUCK

Marion's first "ghost" of World War II is home from the hell of Bataan and Corregidor, a lively, laughing apparition.

He is Junior Glen Bevis, 21, this community's first service man to be reported missing and then reported to be safe.

Bevis, machinists's mate, second class, in the United States navy, is visiting his mother, Mrs. C. E. Heffley of 661 Herman street—his first visit home in nearly five years.

With him comes news that Bill Gibson of Chicago avenue, machinists's mate, second class, whose relatives have heard nothing from him for months, was alive and well on Corregidor early in April. As far as he knows, Gibson was not among the men taken off Corregidor.

Bevis was on the next to the last submarine to leave embattled Corregidor, one of 27 men to go—He was No. 33 on the list of those to leave, but in the turmoil of the last days of the island, some of the men didn't show up and he got to make the trip.

Where he went from Corregidor is a navy secret, but he said the other day that in the months that followed the ship to which he was assigned after reaching safety in the submarine had not been engaged in any battles, nor had he been in any particular danger at any time.

"You might say," he told a reporter, 'that in my nearly five years in the navy I've been to Hawaii, Guam, China, New Zealand, Australia and the Philippines."

He must be at a west coast station soon to report for duty and, while he's happy to be with his mother again and to see his many friends in Marion, he's also anxious to be back at sea.

Corregidor Worse

"Bataan, in plain words, was hell, and if Bataan was hell you can't begin to describe Corregidor," he said.

"I tell you, the way those army men and marines fought was something no one will ever be able to realize," was the high praise of the navy man, who was visibly stirred as he recounted the valiant stand of the American and Filipino defenders.

His praise for the men of Bataan and Corregidor includes a real salute to the great American sense of humor.

It never left the men in the blackest hours of their heroic sacrifice and struggle.

After one of the worst Jap bombing raids on Bataan a chaplain went among the men passing out hundreds of penny American all-day suckers. The incongruity was enough to send the men off into a barrage of jokes that broke the tension, relaxed their torn nerves and set them up for action again.

Bevis was on Bataan from Christmas morning, 1941, until April 9 of this year, when he was sent to Corregidor. Things happened so fast in those days of the memorable stand against the Japs that he's not quite sure, but he thinks he was on Corregidor two days before he left on the submarine.

Variety of Work

He was on a submarine tender and the men of the crew operated the tender's machine shop to repair guns, motors "and anything else" for the army—the welders even welded army tanks—and later the crew did sentry duty on the beach and formed working parties to carry food and water to marines on the invasion fronts and any other work that the army and marines might designate.

There were days when bombs literally rained from the skies. No one was safe from the bombs, the snipers and the strafing of low-flying Jap planes. Bevis escaped unhurt.

To him the horror of Bataan and Corregidor came in those last days when there was sickness everywhere and no quinine and no medical supplies for them, short rations of food that has made Bevis allergic to rice for the rest of his life, no facilities to bathe and shave or make the slightest attempt at cleanliness.

"It was awful," he said solemnly.

On one February day when he was a member of a working party the sky literally "snowed" leaflets from Jap planes. Bevis got one, took it to a Filipino doctor and had it translated from Tagalog into English.

Here's the little yellow men's

Posse To Hunt Sheep-Killing Dogs Sunday

An organized search for two and possibly more dogs believed responsible for the killing of sheep in Tully township and vicinity will be staged Sunday morning in the large woods near the Fred Stinehelfer farm northeast of Martel, it was announced today by Elmer Ullom, Marion county dog warden.

The slaughter of 10 sheep in the neighborhood and the discovery of a large brindle bull dog running wild with a hound in the woods this week prompted the organized hunt, Warden Ullom said.

The warden is hoping that at least 300 men will respond to the call for helpers in the hunt which will start at 10 o'clock Sunday morning. He is asking that all use shotguns and that no rifles be used. According to plans the hunters will start at the west side of the 100 acre tract of woods and sweep the territory completely, and all are asked to start at the same place to avoid any accidents. Signs will be placed along the road directing the hunters from either Martel or New Winchester, to the woods.

Residents of the neighborhood of the woods are asked to keep their dogs tied up until after the hunt is over.

COUNTY CHURCHES FORM ASSOCIATION

Organize for More Effective Service to Community.

An association of Marion county churches was organized at a meeting of representatives of 18 organizations at the Y.M.C.A. last night. Temporary officers were elected to get the program of the association under way. The purpose of the organization is to make it possible for churches to work together more effectively to meet the religious and social needs of the increased population of the city and county and of the community in general.

Rev. E. M. Hertzler of First Church of the Brethren was elected temporary chairman, Rev. J. B. Holloway of Trinity Baptist church, temporary vice chairman, and Miss Marguerite Williamson of Epworth Methodist church and president of the Christian Young People's union, temporary secretary.

Churches and other organizations which have voted to date to cooperate in the association are Trinity Baptist, Green Camp Baptist, Salem Evangelical and Reformed, First United Brethren, Green Camp Methodist, First Church of the Brethren, Prospect Street Methodist, Central Christian, Kiwanis club, First Evangelical and Reformed, Grand Prairie Baptist, Morral Baptist, Forest Lawn Presbyterian, Epworth Methodist, Y.M.C.A., Christian Young People's union, Marion County Ministerial association and Marion Council of United Church Women.

The temporary officers will meet with a group of representatives from the churches and draw up plans for the permanent organization of the association. At that time a name for the association will be decided on.

JAPS BELTED SURPRISE BLOW IN SOLOMONS

Eight Planes Destroyed and Five Ships, Including Heavy Cruiser, Damaged.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 — Persistently belting Japanese invaders throughout the vast Pacific war zone, the allied offensive left surprised enemy forces in the Solomon islands today with eight less aircraft and five damaged ships, including a heavy cruiser.

The latest of the recently initiated attacks which have forced the Japanese back virtually to their starting point in New Guinea and apparently driven them out of two of the three western Aleutian islands they once occupied, struck at the heart of the Nipponese invasion base in the North Solomons.

Catching the Japanese unawares in bad weather, an American aircraft carrier force shattered the enemy's ships and planes in the Shortland island area on Monday, the navy disclosed last night.

Army Bombers Help

Simultaneously, long range bombers under General Douglas MacArthur's Australian command forestalled an aerial counter-attack by splashing the enemy's airbases in nearby islands with bombs.

Without loss of a man or a plane, the navy's aircraft damaged a heavy cruiser and a transport with heavy bombs and two cargo ships and a seaplane tender with lighter bombs. Two enemy seaplanes and two bombers were shot down and four 4-engined flying boats were destroyed in the harbor. In addition, low-flying craft poured bullets into another cruiser and destroyer.

Concentrations of enemy ships were sighted in the Shortland island area and it was considered likely they had helped supply and reinforce the Japanese detachments on American controlled Guadalcanal island 250 miles distant.

Meanwhile, on the basis of the navy's last report on the Guadalcanal operations, naval and military circles still expected the Japanese would attempt again to recapture the airbase taken by the marines more than two months ago.

New Guinea Situation

In New Guinea, Australian ground forces worked their way without opposition to the Owen Stanley mountain passage, doorway from Japanese bases to the north shore of the island to the allied base at Port Moresby to the south.

Growing cooperation of the allied forces in the battle of the Pacific was indicated by announcement of Navy Minister Angus MacDonald in Ottawa that five Canadian warships had aided the United States forces in occupying the Andreanof islands in the Aleutians.

While no further word came from this front, it was presumed the remaining Japanese foothold at Kiska was being subjected to repeated bombardments by allied planes operating from the Andreanof base.

HEARINGS SET FOR 2 MARION CAFES

Board Acts on Complaints; To Hear Cases Wednesday.

Owners of two Main street cafes have been ordered to appear before the state liquor board next Wednesday on complaints of violating liquor department regulations, The Associated Press reported in Columbus.

Iris Viggins, James Uline and Dwight Hildreth, doing business as Viggins cafe at 138 South Main street, are named in a complaint charging them with selling intoxicating liquors, especially whisky, to persons already intoxicated in violation of a board ruling forbidding sale of liquor to intoxicated persons.

C. W. Scott, operator of Scotty's place at 181 North Main street, also has been ordered to appear before the board Wednesday on a complaint charging him with operating a licensed cafe wherein numerous arrests have been made for drunkeness, fights and general disorder.

The cases will be brought before the board Wednesday at 9 a. m.

Chief of Police William E. Marks yesterday received word of the citations from the state board.

New Levy Hits All Earnings Over $624 Yearly

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 — The senate voted today to place on top of the regular income tax a 5 per cent "victory" levy against all earnings of individuals in excess of $624 yearly.

Adoption of the new wartime tax came on a voice vote after the senate had rejected a proposal by Senator Downey (D-Calif) to enlarge the basic exemption to $1,200 yearly and boost the levy to 10 per cent on earnings above $2,400.

Also today, President Roosevelt notified congress that the doubling of social security taxes next Jan. 1 would be "not only in accord with the necessities of the social security system itself, but at the same time would contribute to the non-inflationary financing of rapidly mounting war expenditures."

In a letter to Chairman George (D-Ga) of the senate finance committee, the President expressed opposition to a committee-approved amendment to the new revenue bill which would freeze payroll taxes at their present levels of 1 per cent on employers and a like amount on employes for 1943.

This amendment, not yet voted upon by the senate, would stay an otherwise automatic increase of the tax on Jan. 1 to 2 per cent each on employers and employes.

Bill's Yield Boosted

Formal addition of the victory levy to the revenue bill boosted the potential yield by a disputed amount ranging from a $3,107,000,000 gross total estimated by the treasury to the $3,000,000,000 set by the finance committee.

Single taxpayers could claim credits for 25 per cent of the amount they paid, with a limit of $500, and married persons could obtain 40 per cent credit, plus 2 per cent for each dependent.

As approved by the senate, the tax would go into effect next Jan. 1, being withheld at the source on payrolls and collected from other taxpayers along with the regular income tax.

Conversion of the victory tax into a vehicle for compulsory savings was predicted by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) as leaders urged acceptance of the levy to speed approval of the new revenue bill.

Driving for early passage, Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) said he would ask the senate to forego part of its usual weekend holiday and meet tomorrow if it appeared a final vote could be reached.

Chairman George (D-Ga) of the finance committee predicted acceptance without change of the victory tax, one of the few remaining controversial sections, and Taft concurred in this viewpoint.

The victory tax and other

COL. SHAFFER HEADS ARMY DEPOT HERE

Commanding Officer Has Long Military Record.

Lieut. Col. C. B. Shaffer has taken over his duties as commanding officer of the Marion Engineer Depot, near the south border of the Scioto Ordnance Plant. He and his assistants are rapidly setting up the headquarters personnel.

Col. Shaffer came here from the Columbus Engineers Depot at Columbus, O., where he had spent most of his time since being called into active duty last July.

His army service dates back to Mexican border duty with the Fifth Infantry, Maryland National Guard. Through the World war he was with the 307th Engineers, 82nd Division, in France. After the armistice he was superintendent of roads for Base Section 2 at Bordeaux.

Returning to civilian life in December of 1919, he resumed civilian work. He was consulting engineer to the road tar department of the Koppers Co. at Pittsburgh and later was general manager of the road tar division of the Pittsburgh Coke & Iron Co at Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Shaffer accompanied him to Marion and they will make their home here.

The depot guard headquarters has been moved to a point along the highway at the entrance to the administration area of the depot. The pass bureau is located at the guard headquarters and persons having business calls at the depot may report there to make application for a pass.

County's Scrap Drive Enters Final Clean-up

Collections at Schools and Receipts at Junk Yards Continue Increase as Second Week Nears End; Phone If Your Donation Has Been Missed

Reports of unusual accomplishments continued to pour in today as Marion's countywide scrap metal campaign neared the end of the second week.

Meanwhile, officials made a renewed effort to get the job finished by the close of next week so Marion county's showing may be as favorable as possible when the drive ends Oct. 17.

Some county schools that wondered two weeks ago whether they might raise 18 tons of scrap were reporting around twice that amount today.

Waldo, for example, where previous metal drives had been made, has an immense pile that residents of the community believe contains 45 tons.

Green Camp residents today placed the tonnage in that school's pile around the 30-ton mark.

Prospect believes it has between 25 and 30 tons.

Marion junk dealers reported 44 tons received yesterday, bringing their total since the drive began to 357 tons. Coupled with 300 tons at the Scioto Ordnance Plant and what the schools have accumulated, the county's yield is well beyond the 1,000-ton mark.

Final Clean-up Next

Clyde C. Caldwell, co-chairman of the Marion County Salvage committee, joined school officials throughout the city and county in urging everyone who has scrap metal but has been missed in the campaign to call their nearest school and report it.

Much of next week will be devoted to a cleanup of overlooked donations, and drive officials have urged that this work be finished as quickly as possible to make sure Marion county gets credit for all available scrap by the end of next week.

The city schools were winding up most of their work this morning, and will be in position to handle telephone callbacks next week.

Ton Donation

A portable water pumping outfit and several 40-foot lengths of pipe totaling about a ton in weight were among the contributions given to the Grand Prairie school scrap heap yesterday.

They were among the contributions of Forest Glen Memorial park.

Supt. M. G. McClone said that the school's collection probably would reach the 20-ton mark. He said he thought the school could "clean up" its work in the school district by tonight.

More Scrap at Lake

Harding High school's participation in the scrap drive is over, except for a collecting job the first of next week at Crystal Lake park, Principal O. H. P. Snyder said this morning.

The school was informed today by park officials that it would be possible to salvage more metal from the one-time quarry.

5 BUILDINGS ON FARM BURNED

Flames Do $12,500 Damage to C. E. Somerlot Property Near Marion.

Fire of undetermined origin razed five buildings on the Carl E. Somerlot farm two and a half miles south of Marion on the Crissinger road early yesterday afternoon, doing damage estimated at approximately $12,500.

Destroyed were a large barn valued at about $7,000, an addition to the barn, a new double corn crib nearly completed, an old corn crib, and a tool shed, with a total valuation of approximately $1,000, 90 tons of hay, more than 800 bushels of oats, 24 little pigs, 200 bushels of corn and about 200 bushels of rye, with an estimated market value of around $1,500. Tools and harness also burned.

Horses and cows in the barn were saved.

5 Buildings Remain

The only farm buildings still standing, besides the house and a woodshed, are the hen house, brooder house and milk house.

The farm is owned by Miss Dona Crissinger of 145 Sharpless court.

Mr. and Mrs. Somerlot were standing in the yard, talking with F. C. Gegenheimer and E. C. Sheth of Marion, when Mr. Gegenheimer looked toward the barn and exclaimed that there was smoke in it, Mrs. Somerlot said today.

Calls were put in to the Marion, Green Camp and Prospect fire departments and the Prospect department responded. The alarm was sounded in Green Camp and although the department did not answer the call, because the farm is not in its membership, residents of the community went in their cars and did volunteer duty. The Marion fire department is restricted to calls within the city limits.

Prevent Spread

The Prospect firemen and a large group of volunteers from Green Camp and surrounding farms, carrying water in buckets and lard cans succeeded in keeping the fire from spreading to the house. The roof of a woodshed about eight feet from the house caught fire several times, but the flames were extinguished without damage to the house.

Direction of the wind, a strong gale sweeping in from the southwest, was blamed for the rapid spread of the fire, which was beyond control when the fire department arrived. The wind caught the fire in the first building to the south and carried the flames to the other buildings.

The fire was discovered about 1:45 p. m. The buildings and contents, are insured, Mrs. Somerlot said.

Swift Senate Approval of Supply Bill Seen

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—Swift senate approval was anticipated today for a $6,226,956,621 omnibus supply bill devoted chiefly to financing the navy's bid for aerial supremacy over the Pacific.

The measure, swelling this nation's bill for World war II to $220,000,000,000, was passed yesterday by the house without opposition or a record vote.

Approximately 60 per cent of the money was earmarked for the navy, with $2,862,000,000 — the biggest single allocation—set apart to purchase 14,611 naval planes.

Chairman Cannon (D-Mo.) of the house appropriations committee and Rep. Taber (R-N.Y.), ranking minority member, reported the nation's spending for arms would reach a rate of $6,000,000,000 monthly by the first of the year.

NAZIS STRIKE BLOW SOUTH OF STALINGRAD

Shift Tactics as New Attack on Volga City Makes Only Slight Gain.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Oct. 9 — The German's grinding slowly forward in an industrial district of Stalingrad but with victory still denied them there, were reported today to have started anew on a wide flanking invasion further south. It obviously was calculated to cut through the Kalmyck territory to the Volga delta on the Caspian sea.

A dispatch to the government newspaper Izvestia from Astrakhan, at the mouth of the Volga, contained the first Russian admission the Germans had entered the Kalmyck area, which lies west of the lower Volga and south of Stalingrad.

This indicated a developing activity on the German right flank across the steppes between the Don and the lower Volga concurrent with the desperate seesaw struggle for Stalingrad.

Izvestia's dispatch said representatives of the Kalymck people had held a council of war, heard reports that the Germans were burning and killing in their territory, and vowed resistance. They sent a message of allegiance to Premier Joseph Stalin.

(Actually, according to German claims, the enemy entered the Kalmyck territory several weeks ago when Elista, the capital, 180 miles west of Astrakhan, was reported captured. The Izvestia dispatch suggested that this penetration now was being extended.

(The route from Elista to Astrakhan traverses some of Russia's worst terrain for the support of an invading army. The region is arid, the great plains rumpled with sand dunes and overgrown with scrub vegetation. Pastoral nomads inhabit it.)

Russian Advance Continues

As for the Russians' own flanking drive northwest of Stalingrad, Izvestia said the advance continued in some sectors with German resistance overcome and counter-attacks repulsed.

In the city itself the Germans, by intensified efforts to hack their way through to the Volga, had overrun two streets in a northwestern industrial suburb.

On the Caucasus front, second in importance only to Stalingrad, the German offensive persisted in the Mozdok sector while southeast of Novorossisk the Germans were attempting to retake positions recently lost by their Rumanian allies.

Near Voronezh, 300 miles northwest of Stalingrad, the Red army was reported holding firmly.

On the Leningrad front the Germans were said to be bringing up siege guns in the Pulkovo sector.

Fresh German assault forces had succeeded in conquest of two streets in northwestern Stalingrad where an earlier push had been repulsed.

Kansas Takes Lead With 72 Pounds Per Person

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 9 — The scramble for the title of best scrap-collecting state in the nation continued today with Kansas in the lead but—

The other states, with eight days remaining in the 21-day salvage campaign led by the newspapers, were putting on pressure.

More than a billion pounds of scrap metal had been rolled up by 24 states listed.

Kansas moved up front, not on the basis of tonnage—65,000—but by grace of the fact the tonnage represented a metal salvage of 72.1 pounds for every person in the state, the best showing so far.

October War Bond Drive Chairman Is Chosen

Carl Lemnitzer, manager of the Moorex & Ross plant, was today named October chairman for the Marion County War Bonds drive. In making this announcement, E. J. Schoenlaub, county chairman, said that October's activities would be devoted to the pay roll savings plan. It is hoped that at least 50 companies will install the pay roll savings plan during the month.

Mr. Lemnitzer plans to name his committee of minute men and meet with them the first of next week when an intensive drive will be outlined.

NAVY REPORTS HEAVY BOMBING OF KISKA

Communique Also Tells of U. S. Ship Loss.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—The navy announced today that army bombers, continuing their steady pounding of Japanese in the Aleutian islands, had dropped 15 tons of bombs on the enemy base at Kiska last Tuesday, starting fires in the camp area, damaging a cargo ship in harbor and strafing the radio station.

This information was given in navy communique No. 145, which also disclosed the loss, in the Atlantic, of the U. S. S. coast guard cutter Muskeget, the former S. S. Cornish, of the Eastern Steamship Lines.

The 1,327-ton steam vessel had been overdue "for some time and must be presumed to be lost," the navy said. Loss of the entire personnel—the Muskeget had a normal complement of about 100 officers and men—also was presumed.

The attack on the Japanese base at Kiska was the latest of more than a dozen aerial raids which have been carried out against that enemy center since the first of September.

It raised to a total of 39 ships sunk or damaged the number of Japanese vessels blasted since they moved into the Aleutians in early June.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

PLEA TO GOOD NEIGHBORS

Editor of The Star: This is the first time I've ever written to a newspaper, but in the last few weeks this matter has been brought to my attention so many times and from so many different people, that I can't help but believe that a little publicity might help the situation.

In my work I contact the families of sick folks every day, and it's shocking to find so many people who are ill without being able to get anyone to care for them. Many of the practical nurses and women who used to work out by the day have taken other jobs in our national emergency, for which we honor them, and the practical nurses who are still on the job are doing all they possibly can, but are sadly overworked and can't possibly fill all the requests that come to them.

The only solution that I can see is for us all to join a "help your neighbor" movement. In the rush of modern living we let our neighbor get along as best he can, and we do the same. But now that only fundamentals are to be reckoned with, we women will have to pitch in and care for our own sick and needy ones. Don't be afraid that will be "butting in" or hurting someone's feelings—a kind or thoughtful act has never yet hurt someone's feelings.

I talked to a neighbor last night who has been ill for about a month. Her husband did all he possibly could for her comfort when he was home but through the day she had to manage alone. Not a single neighbor came in to even get her a fresh glass of water or a little hot lunch. And she's a swell person.

One young father told me that he had to lay off to care for his wife when her baby was born. And goodness knows, young folks need money when their babies arrive.

Would it be possible for you to do something through your paper to make folks see the need of neighborliness? Our women are the same fine people that our grandmothers were, and all they need is for someone to show them the need and they'll come through 100 per cent. An hour in the morning at the home of a sick neighbor would mean breakfast dishes done, beds made and the living room presentable; and knowing women as I know them, that would be almost as much good for the patient as the doctor's visit!

The days are pretty long when one is in bed, too, and even a cheerful "Hello" helps break the monotony and brightens the heart of the one who is ill.

Believe me, I'm turning over a new leaf and I hope you can persuade many others to do likewise. JENNIE C. SHANNON, 221 South High St.

Editor's Note: The letter above presents most admirably a suggestion of unquestionable merit, worthy of thoughtful consideration by everybody. We hope sincerely that it results in a more widespread and definite demonstration of the "Help Your Neighbor" sentiment as expressed by Mrs. Shannon.

Ashley-Cardington School Problem Settled

DELAWARE, O., Oct. 9—Payment of $982.27, the Westfield township obligation on Cardington school bonds, will be made by the Ashley school district under an agreement which terminates a controversy which arose following a transfer of the Westfield territory from the Morrow to the Delaware county school systems, it was announced yesterday.

The amount will be adjusted on the distribution of funds that each district will receive from the August settlement of real estate tax collections. The actual payment to the Morrow county district will be about $427.11, deductions having been made for general operating funds due Ashley, since the transfer was made during the tax collection period.

Announcement of the settlement was made by county school officials who have been negotiating with representatives of the two boards for several weeks.

Enemy Aliens' Right To Sue in Court Upheld

By The Associated Press

CANTON, Oct. 9 — Enemy aliens have a right to assert their claims in court during wartime, the Fifth district court of appeals holds.

The appellate court ordered a suit brought by an enemy alien tried in its regular order, overruling a continuance until after the war granted by the Stark county common pleas court. The continuance was granted when testimony showed Mrs. Johanna Leiberg, who sought $20,000 from Bernard Bitangelli as the result of an automobile accident in which her husband was killed, was not a naturalized citizen. She was born in Germany.

The court called the continuance a "gross abuse" of justice and declared Mrs. Leiberg had a right to prosecute her action and assert her claim.

DeWitt MACKENZIE returns to the WAR ZONES

DeWitt Mackenzie, who has made so many trips to Europe he has lost count, is back in the war zones to write history on the spot. During the next critical weeks, the famous war analyst will cable his daily interpretative column, "The War Today" and special articles to this and hundreds of other Associated Press newspapers. It will be important reading for millions, routine assignment for Mackenzie who has been covering Europe and Europe's wars for more than 25 years. Probably no other American writer has a wider acquaintance abroad. He has traveled extensively not only in Europe but in the Orient and in the Western Hemisphere reporting the world's big news.

The first time Mackenzie went to Europe in 1916 he found himself mistaken for a Sinn Feiner and barely escaped execution during Ireland's Bloody Easter Week Rebellion. He served with British Headquarters in France in the last war, saw fighting in Egypt, covered the British occupation of the Rhine and spent months in India. He reported the Versailles Peace Conference and was on hand at Munich and when Hitler made triumphal entry into Sudetenland. Mackenzie was chief of the foreign service of The Associated Press when he began his foreign affairs column in 1936. His audience at home and abroad has grown to the greatest of any daily newspaper columnist. And Mackenzie, always a good reporter, still is on the move!

"Are you finding that you are getting the wholehearted cooperation of the newspapers of the country?" inquired Rep. Ludlow (D-Ind.)

"Yes, indeed," Davis responded. "It is almost embarrassing, because they make us look as good as we would like to be but I am afraid occasionally better than we really are."

Ludlow then inquired whether Davis had observed any trend developing which might "ultimately impinge on the freedom of speech?"

"I do not," replied Davis.

"Of course," he added, "that is primarily Byron Price's field (Price is director of censorship.) Voluntary censorship of the press seems to me to work very well. I think it is the only kind that would ever work in this country.

"I think it would be impossible as well as undesirable to attempt forcible censorship. I think that the way Byron Price is running it is just as good as you can get it. It may not be perfect, but it works pretty well."

"It is the job of OWI," Davis told the committee, "not only to tell the American people how the war is going, but where it is going and where it came from—its nature and origins, how our government is conducting it, and what, besides national survival our government hopes to get out of victory."

County Agent Smith Gives Talk to Grange

Arthur Smith, Marion county agricultural agent, talked on World Wars I and II and the importance of getting scrap to the foundries to turn out munitions for the present conflict, at the "booster night" meeting of Grand Prairie grange Tuesday night. Members of the faculty of the Grand Prairie school were guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Peterson, who moved yesterday to a farm near Denmark, were presented a farewell gift.

The program opened with group singing of "America the Beautiful" and the pledge of allegiance, and continued as follows: group of melodies, Christina Dallas and Barbara Osmun; talk by Mr. Smith; song, Mrs. T. O. Rinehart, accompanied by Miss Ruth Renner; selections by Albert Click's band; musical romance contest won by Mrs. Rinehart and Paul Lill, group singing.

SAW U. S. RAID

Edward Kennedy (above), chief of the Associated Press correspondents covering the war on the Mediterranean front, described the mass raid by U. S. bombers on the Axis base of Navarino Bay, Greece. Kennedy flew with the U.S. bombers, which he said comprised "a great armada of monster planes."

Marion Soldier Figures in Happy 'Family Exchange'

War can land folks in strange places but it also can bring about some happy friendships and do it in a most unusual way, if you ask Corp. Gene McGinnis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan McGinnis of 480 South State street, or Sgt. Lester Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson of Sacramento, Calif. The two have never met, for Corp. McGinnis is in the air corps at Mather Field, Sacramento, Calif., and Sgt. Johnson is with the 333rd Railroad Engineers here, but they have practically traded places for the moment, so far as their families are concerned.

When Corp. McGinnis accepted an invitation for dinner while attending church at Sacramento recently, his hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Johnson. In the course of the conversation he informed them he lived in Marion, and to his surprise learned that their son was stationed here. A letter to Sgt. Johnson and one to his parents told the story. The McGinnis family called on the soldier at the camp, he returned the call one evening recently, and now there's a dinner in the offing just as soon as the sergeant has time off.

Pay-As-You-Go Policy Favored in Canadian Poll

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 2—The Canadians [illegible] the United States some valuable lessons in taxpaying spirit [illegible] have practiced an honesty [illegible] boost paying [illegible] taxes and [illegible] more [illegible] to finance [illegible] war on the [illegible] pay [illegible] pay.

Dr. Gallup

We [illegible] United States [illegible] ing [illegible] [illegible] the U.S. [illegible] Canadian [illegible] prefer to have their [illegible] one [illegible] does [illegible] than [illegible] future generation.

Take [illegible] Canadian [illegible]

Canadian Poll

[illegible] Canadians [illegible] Institute of Public Opinion asked [illegible] people what they thought of the government's policy of attempting to pay one-half to three-fourths of the war's cost on the battlefield. The question put to Canadians was:

"At present the government's policy is to try to pay about three-quarters of the cost of the war out of the present income. Do you think this is a good policy or do you think more of this expense should be left to be paid after the war is over?"

Canadians [illegible] were interviewers paused long enough from figuring out their tax deductions to reply as follows:

Approve pay-as-you-go	67%
Postpone more till after war	20
Undecided	13

Canada's new income taxes are substantially higher than those in the United States. The average Canadian family of four earning from $2,000 to $5,000 will pay anywhere from one-half more to twice as much as an American family with the same income paid this year.

How Canadians Will Save

Another interesting survey in Canada found that the greatest number were planning to meet the new taxes by cutting down on pleasures, entertainment, holidays, clothes, smoking and drinking.

The question put to Canadians was:

"If you should find it necessary to make sacrifices to meet the new income taxes, in what ways do you plan to cut down?"

The items in order of frequency of mention are:

1. 21 per cent said they would cut down on pleasures, entertainment or holidays.
2. 20 per cent said clothes would be reduced.
3. 15 per cent plan to cut down on smoking or drinking.
4. 12 per cent on automobile driving.
5. 7 per cent said they would reduce their food outlay.
6. 3 per cent said they would have to cut down on "everything."

Another 12 per cent said they were already down to bare necessities now and could not see how to cut further, while 8 per cent had not yet planned how to meet the taxes, and 18 per cent didn't think they would have to sacrifice anything.

NEW PLANT MANAGER AIDED FLYING TIGERS

C. W. Hunter Takes Position in Columbus Factory.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 2—C. W. Chuck Hunter, who once directed the engine-test planes of the famous Flying Tigers, today was appointed factory manager of the Curtiss-Wright airplane plant here.

J. L. Wilhelm, the factory's general manager, in announcing selection of Hunter to succeed Stanley J. Vaughn, also disclosed that an experimental department had been established. Vaughn also was placed in charge.

Hunter spent several years in China recruiting and operating repair factories owned jointly by Curtiss and the Chinese government and maintained planes for the China air force and the American volunteer group known as the Flying Tigers, a company spokesman said.

The Curtiss announcement termed Hunter "a personal friend of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek," and said he was one of the men who conceived the idea for establishment of the flying tigers.

At the Columbus plant Hunter will direct construction of the Army's dive bomber—the Helldiver—and its scout plane, the Seagull.

A Promise for Tomorrow

BY ELEANOR ATTERBURY

CHAPTER TWENTY
After The Destruction

PETE and Julie were destined to wait long hours before they could even begin to untangle the taint of events. Although the fire was under control now, it would be daylight before they could venture back into the valley.

And when dawn finally did pink the sky, the cruel waste of the night's ravaging fire lay everywhere around them.

"They'll have to pay for this," Pete growled savagely as they picked their way carefully down the hill toward the site of the Kelland cabin. "Another item on the account the dirty sneaks started at Pearl Harbor. If you're right about the tall villain, Julie,"—his fists clenched, the muscle along his jaw tightened, "we'll make him pay part of it!"

A steep climb brought them to the brow of a hill, showed them the next stream valley. Straight down a blackened slope dropping away from them to the tiny stream below, they could see what was left of the Kelland cabin. The stone foundation, the charred skeleton of the house. All else was in ashes.

For a long moment, they stared, trying to believe that the empty, blackened shell below had only yesterday been a lovely summer home, eaves-deep in green shrubbery, half-hidden by tall pines. Denuded now, the whole scene told a grim story.

"Ghastly," Julie murmured and shook tears out of her eyes. Then, remembering suddenly, "Where are the others?"

"Safe — I hope!" Pete started down toward the road, a white streak far below. "At least all the cars are gone. They must have found a way out."

"Look!" Julie pointed to tire tracks in the white dust. "They must have gone on up this way."

Pete grinned, followed the tire tracks. "It was used last night, all right. Lucky for—"

"There they are!"

Dawn Lost

Coming toward them, slowly, trailing a cloud of dust, moved four automobiles. Julie called, waved. A moment later the first car drew up beside her, Bart at the wheel.

"Thank Heaven you're safe," he said instantly, his white face grimy, his eyes deep-circled, blood-shot. "Where's Dawn?"

Julie stared at him. "Isn't she with you?"

Bart sprang from the car, grasped her shoulders. "Don't tell me you haven't seen her, Julie. Where is she?"

"Don't lose your head, Bart," Pete said quietly. "That's no help."

"But she must be with you!" Bart insisted frantically.

"Tell us when you saw her last, Bart," Julie suggested calmly, extricating herself from his cruel grasp on her shoulders.

"She was with us when we decided we'd have to abandon the house, Bart moistened dry lips nervously. "She told me to drive on ahead that she'd follow in the last car."

"I was driving the last car out," one of the men spoke up, shook his head. "Didn't even see her."

"Well, perhaps she didn't want to alarm you unduly and had decided to risk getting to the lookout station to phone for help, or—something," Pete concluded a little weakly.

But his calm took effect on the weary little group. They clung to his matter-of-factness like shipwrecked sailors to a raft, instantly obeyed his suggestion that all return to town as quickly as possible, telephone would back if Dawn were not at home yet.

Julie roused when Pete carried her from the car to the house. She was grateful to Hulda for a warm bath, for being bundled into bed. And sank almost immediately into deep, child-like sleep.

When she awakened it was six o'clock. Morning or evening? She sat up, rubbed her eyes, unbelieving. She'd slept nearly fifteen hours!

Thrusting bare toes into soft white mules, she ran down stairs, pulling on her robe as she went. Hulda was just setting the table for breakfast.

"Hulda! Why did you let me sleep so long! What has happened? Who called? Are there any messages?"

The stolid Norwegian woman smiled calmly. "Yust calm yourself now, Miss Jodie. Nothing has happened. And nobody left any messages for you. So yust come eat your breakfast like a nice girl."

But Julie dashed on into the library, snatched up the phone. Mr. Kelland himself answered. No, Dawn had not returned from her week-end trip as yet. He was expecting her his morning.

Obviously he didn't know about the fire. Obviously he wasn't worrying about Dawn. It was better so.

No Trace Of Dawn

Then she called the Fowler home. A maid answered.

"Mr. Pete is not in."

"Is he at the plant, do you know?" Julie asked.

"Mr. Pete is not in," the girl repeated stupidly, and hung up.

Exasperated, Julie called the shipyard office. No luck. Mr. Fowler Jr. was out of town.

Didn't anybody know there'd been a fire? That Dawn Kelland had disappeared? This time she called Bart, got a creepy.

"Oh, hello, Julie. Heard anything about Dawn, yet?"

"Haven't you?"

"Only that Pete called the ranger station and nobody's seen her. They've got search parties out now, combing the mountain."

"When did they start?"

"Last night. Soon after we got back."

"Pete, too?" she asked anxiously.

"Yes. I'm going up this morning to relieve him."

And she had slept peacefully through it all. "I'll go with you, Bart."

"Oh no you won't. Pete left strict orders that you were not to come," Bart's voice sharpened strangely. "He wants you to break the news to Kelland in case we don't find Dawn today."

"They'll find her, all right," she said, with more confidence than she really felt.

"Oh, Julie, they've got to find her. Poor little kid."

Bart's anxiety betrayed him. He'd always been in love with her, whether he knew it or not.

Dr. Tom was just coming down stairs as she returned to the hallway.

"Hello, puss. Understand you've been fighting forest fires," he said carelessly enough but his eyes were grave with worry. "You all right now?"

She nodded. "But we can't find Dawn," and [illegible] twenty-four hours. Of the [illegible] prudently said nothing.

"Egad, Kelland will be a crazy man. He adores that girl."

"Oh, Pete will find her all right," and automatically ate the food Hulda set before her.

Pete called just as she was ready to leave for the office.

"We can't find her, Julie,"—his voice came wearily across the wire. "Personally, I don't think they'll find her, now."

"You mean—alive?"

Pete didn't answer for a moment. "I'll tell you later. Picked up a few new angles. Will you tell Kelland as much as you think wise?"

Julie drew a long breath. "Yes, of course."

"Good. See you later."

"Bye." Slowly, Julie replaced the receiver. To tell a man already stricken, that his only child had disappeared, dead, perhaps or even worse!

CONGRESS CRITICIZED IN BROMFIELD TALK

Author Cites Threat Democracy.

Associated Press

... Oct. 9—Louis ... Bromfield author- ... ing with three con- ... radio discussion ... ed last night ... despread feeling ... by its behavior is ... very institution of ... ssailed congress for ... signs of activity" ... ting inflation, es- ... centralized war man- ... to "supplant the ... ective service sys- ... ting with the prob- ... ing the draft age to ...

Congressmen John Vorys (R) of Columbus, George H. Bender (R) of Cleveland, and Albert Gore (D) of Tennessee listened. Bromfield declared on America's town meeting of the air.

"One has only to look down on the floor of the house or the senate into the faces of the men seated there to discover that there are many, too many, men in those seats, who are 'ignorant bigoted, weak, compromising and sometimes unscrupulous.'"

Vorys, admitting that the "first sight of congress in a working session is rather shocking," observed:

"Presidents, judges, generals and novelists all compose their paper work in private. The public sees only the finished product. Congress writes its laws in public. It looks bad and is really very good because it is so human. Presidents and bureaucrats, dictators and novelists are human, too, in doing their work. Remember that and we will continue a republic."

Bender commented:

"There are many things for which congress has been criticized, and justly so. We are not perfect. We are simply representatives of the common people of the country. Their faults are our faults, but we, like you, are united to a man to win this war."

Vorys and Bender agreed with Bromfield that a central agency was needed to distribute all manpower resources among industry, agriculture and the army.

BENDER OFFERS PLAN TO HELP FARMERS

Pooling of Machinery, Shifting of Families Proposed.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—Declaring that city life and high wages were luring millions of workers from the nation's farms, Representative Bender (R-Ohio) has called on the agricultural department to undertake solution of the farm labor shortage by shifting farm families and pooling agricultural machinery.

Bender said "a shortage of more that 2,500,000 farm laborers will strike the agricultural economy of the country in 1943 unless the government meets the issue squarely and at once.

"If the war continues at its present pace for a relatively long time to come, the drain upon farm manpower will affect not only harvest time but the planting season as well," the Ohioan said in a statement. "It is up to the department of agriculture now to formulate an effective plan to meet this threat."

He suggested a census of all time-saving farm machinery which could be used where it would do the most good.

"This census," he said, "could be taken between now and Jan. 1 by boys in rural high schools. The records could be turned over to county farm boards. These boards, handling requests for new machinery, will be in position to know the requirements of farmers in their communities, and to suggest ways of spreading the use of equipment on hand."

ROAD TO VICTORY!

By MARY ELLEN CHASE
Novelist and Short Story Writer

There was a saying current on the Maine coast of my childhood and, I trust, still in use and practice there:

The Smart Man Buys the Future

When I buy war stamps and bonds, I think of this saying and of its wise American truth. For we are actually buying the future with our quarters and our dollars. Not a future merely of personal security — although that in itself is sane and good, but the larger future of our country. With our war bonds we buy security against slavery and tyranny, against the loss of our way of life. We buy enlistment in the fighting forces; we buy that moral fibre which patriotism demands for its steady purpose. We buy the protection of the individual, of his liberties and his duties as an individual. From the sacrifice of the pleasures for which we once spent more than we can now honestly afford to spend, we buy time to think of more principles upon which our nation was formed and which we as Americans are in honor bound to support. We buy encouragement to our children to think of these things also. We buy a new self-respect and determination, we buy faith and hope and freedom.

And as we buy the future, we buy back the past, which too many of us have been in danger of forgetting—the American past of hard work and sacrifice, of homes instead of houses, of struggle against the perils of a new, unexplored land, of courage and idealism and vision. For every war bond is a reminder of 300 years of democracy, from the New England coast to the last outpost on the western frontier. All these years with their noble meanings for every American are implicit and actual in every stamp bought and every bond attained.

This is a war in which the very young and the very old, the poor and the rich, may join the fighting forces by this tangible means. And it is this new understanding of our privilege and our obligation as Americans which war bonds offer us all.

Yes, the smart man buys the future, his own future and that of his children and the children, the future itself, and the life of a new and better world.

Lutherans See Debt Free Church in Year

By The Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 9—A debt-free church by the end of 1943 was the goal set today by delegates at the opening session of the seventh biennial convention of the American Lutheran church, third largest Lutheran body in the United States.

With receipts $5,000 in excess of the same period last year, the remaining debt of $20,000 should be liquidated, it was announced in connection with the report of the finance committee on which action was taken by A. S. Kenneth of Canton, O.

The committee reported no new debts have been incurred since formation of the American Lutheran church in 1930 from a merger of the Ohio, Iowa and Buffalo synods.

Quit Complaining! Ohio City Has "Beefless" Day

By The Associated Press

ASHLAND, O., Oct. 9—This city experienced its first "beefless" day of this war yesterday—but it didn't go meatless. It just grinned.

The 12,000 residents were pledged not to complain, or "beef," about anything. It was the idea of American Legion leaders, who said such "beefless" days would continue every Thursday for the war's duration.

There is no strict limit to the amount that a consumer may be allowed by his local board, which will use their own judgment, the announcement added.

Beautiful Ohio and No Fooling

OUT-OF-STATE visitors must be puzzled by this state's political campaign for the governorship, in which the Democratic challenger is blaming the Republican incumbent for a surplus in the treasury after paying off indebtedness. They probably wish somebody could be blamed for a surplus in their states.

George E. Sokolsky, who writes for the New York Sun, suggested after an Ohio visit a few days ago that some of the great financiers in Washington might come to Columbus to learn what a surplus looks like. He was impressed by the way the Ohio sales tax is working and pointed out that this is one state that has managed to be solvent without an income tax, a field already cultivated intensively by the federal government. In short, Visitor Sokolsky was impressed. He asked Gov. Bricker how that surplus was accumulated and was told that had there been no war there would have been a reduction in the tax rate, but that as it is he hopes to use the surplus to avert a boost in state taxes when their productivity begins to decline due to the federal government's stiff competition in the taxing field.

If anyone told Mr. Sokolsky the rest of the story about that surplus he didn't mention it. He probably would have been impressed to find out that the Democrats, for reasons of expediency, have taken the position that the rainy day fund in the state treasury should be dissipated among the municipalities, including chiefly the Democrats of Cleveland, and that unless this is done Gov. Bricker should not be given serious consideration for reelection. (They do not want him to be given serious consideration in any event, but they are dead certain he isn't going to ladle out the gravy to the municipal machines so they are pinning all their hopes on that one accusation.)

This is still beautiful Ohio even if the politicians do go to some silly extremes sometimes to fool voters. Somehow the impression is getting around that it's proving hard to fool them about a little extra money in the slate sock being a criminal offense at a time like this.

Self-Protection

THERE is nothing to be gained from suffering through any more pain than the new tax bill will inflict when it is passed, in due time. In self-protection, taxpayers should look the other way when the latest prospectus is dangled before their horrified eyes.

But in the event they happen to notice what is in store for them, self-protection demands other precaution. They must fit the prospects outlined in the bill to their own prospects during the period when the taxes will be collected.

One purpose of heavy taxation is to absorb buying power that cannot be used in the consumer market, except to bid up prices in competitive buying. Even the indignant taxpayer who was sure a few months ago that his excess buying power was an economist's pipe dream can begin to see some possibilities.

With the disappearance of some commodities from the market, leading to curtailment of his standard of living, he will save some money that ordinarily would be spent. If price and wage stabilization are not shattered by failure to keep them under rigid control, millions of ordinary consumers drawing high wages in the war boom actually will have more money next year than they have this year. Gasoline rationing will reduce their overhead. There will be minimum expenditures on vacations. A large part of the tax increase will be cushioned by new savings to the point of being almost painless, contrary to the wailing of those who are sure that higher taxes will be a fate far worse than death.

OWI and WW

THE FELLOW who thinks Wendell Willkie's present mission is to keep everybody in an uproar has a good point but a bad case. Mr. Willkie's job plainly is something more important than the creation of confusion for confusion's sake. As for the uproar, he's making a great success of it.

In fact, it is beginning to look as if he had taken it upon himself to act as the vocal conscience of the American people. He says the things that are in their minds, thereby upsetting some of them deeply because they have pledged themselves not to listen.

Specifically, he says there's a damaging gap between American promise and performance; that from where he has been standing on his whirlwind tour the United Nations haven't too much to boast about; that they talk about democracy and the brotherhood of man but have a tough time hiding their bad records from Asiatics; and that the anti-Axis powers are never going to lick anybody until they take the offensive, not just in Europe, to help Russia, but everywhere, to help themselves, or words to that effect. If it weren't for the now generally known fact that Mr. Willkie is accompanied by officials of OWI (which means office of war information in case you came in late) the whole business could be shrugged off. Plainly, however, the government doesn't want it shrugged off, which is a mark in the government's favor.

News Behind the News

Expenditures Tax Bobs Up Again in Treasury Department's Plans.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—That additional $6,000,000,000 tax levied personally by Secretary Morgenthau has been talking about vaguely is the old expenditure tax, to be traded off, revised, and simplified.

This tax is to be offered atop the $6,000,000,000 of new taxes in the bill now being passed by congress, and the $16,000,000,000 already being collected—for a total tax levy of $30,000,000,000, nearly twice as much as at present.

The expenditures tax was laughed out of congress when it was presented first some weeks ago. The treasury thought it simple, but no one else did, unless they used the word with another meaning.

As straight as anyone could get it, the treasury wanted to make citizens pay taxes on their total living expenses, which would require everyone to keep books. It probably could not have been efficiently enforced.

Treasury tinkers are working it now into a sales tax form, where they at least would be able to collect it. Details have not been decided, but one form now being considered would require each citizen to hold an over-all rationing card and pay an expenditures (sales) tax on each purchase made above a certain exempted amount.

For instance, you might pay nothing on the first loaf of bread, but a 10 per cent tax if you wanted a second one.

Congress is not ripe for this, but the treasury may boom the idea up a bit by getting the new economic kid-sitter, Justice Byrnes, to come out for it.

Even in more efficient form, it seems to offer an appalling system of rationing-tax regimentation over the lives of the people—and, apparently, only for the purpose of getting around the simpler, but hated "sales tax," because liberals do not like that term.

Nevertheless, the treasury will press the idea in some form on congress, immediately after the present tax bill is passed.

Forced Bond Buying

The shunned forced savings tax—requiring every wage earner to invest a certain amount in government bonds—also will be pushed again at the same time or later. This would raise about $13,000,000,000 a year) in war savings bonds.

This voluntary sales system cannot be pushed much higher. The inspiring patriotic campaign of the movie people produced $727,000,000 in September, although the goal for the month was $775,000,000.

Mr. Morgenthau graciously collected additional last minute returns by telegraph, to swell the month's total above $775,000,000 in order that the movie people (some of whom worked themselves into nervous breakdowns) would not feel their efforts lacked success. But this experience in voluntary sales of bonds has brought the treasury closer to the forced savings idea.

If all the tax and bond plans of the treasury are adopted, the government would take next year about $56,000,000,000 from its people, nearly half the national income.

Government Waste

Grumbling is growing in congress and elsewhere about the waste of money in Washington. One of the few tangible examples has been offered by Representative Engel of Michigan in a study he made of the $70,000,000 new war department building across the Potomac river.

Congress appropriated only $25,000,000 for this building and was told it would be built for that amount. It did not find out, until Engel spoke the other day, that the building cost twice that much, with no appreciable increase in floor space. Among the reasons for such a heavy cost were the following wages paid on the job:

Bricklayers, $1.75 an hour; carpenters, $1.61½; electricians, $1.80; iron workers and spray painters, $2; plumbers, $1.65.

The $70,000,000 cost of the building went 54 per cent to labor and only 46 per cent for materials. Mr. Engel's exposure of a condition, which can be duplicated in nearly any direction you look in the capital city, drew no popular attention.

Nearby to the new war department building is a government-built commercial airfield which cost around $13,000,000, three or four times what it was supposed to, a fact no one is stressing. Across the bridge from them is the colossal new Jefferson memorial, supposed to cost $2,350,000, useless for any war purpose.

Agitation of congressmen, newspapers, or citizen organizations, will not do any good toward diminishing waste.

They never learn the facts until the money has been spent, as in the case of the war building, the airfield and as in a notable case last year of the bureau of information (facetiously known as Mellett's madhouse). That expensive structure was constructed to tell foot-weary business men where to go in the government, but is now of use only as recruiting headquarters for the WAACS and WAVES and other services.

Waste, the inevitable backwash of war, will never be trimmed until the President himself decides to do it. Only he can exert the authority or designate an authority, to save the money before it is gone.

One Woman's Big Job

Margaret Hickey Trains Her Sex for War Work.

MARGARET HICKEY

By ADELAIDE KERR
Wide World Features Writer

MARGARET HICKEY holds a bigshot war job no other woman has ever held before.

As chairman of the new woman's policy committee of the War Manpower Commission, she heads the first wartime committee of American women which settles important policy.

So she is my nomination for the Woman of the Month.

Miss Hickey, dark-eyed, silver-haired and smooth-skinned as a girl—is a good-looking Missouri lawyer who founded and heads a St. Louis training school for business women.

She and her committee of 11 other women leaders of labor and industry have one of the toughest jobs in the war effort. They will help recruit 5,000,000 more women for war production by the end of 1943 and cooperate with the War Manpower Commission to obtain the most effective utilization of women power.

Important Work

The training, placement and grading of women factory workers, the conditions under which they work and the maintenance of health and safety standards will be among their problems. One of their greatest concerns will be the older woman.

"She shouldn't be pushed out by age prejudice just as she approaches her years of greatest usefulness with experience and maturity of viewpoint to her credit," Miss Hickey said recently in New York. "If a woman is able and can qualify, let her work."

Miss Hickey is one of those women who will always be known as "a swell person"—quick-witted, friendly and possessed of a million dollar smile. In private life she is Mrs. Joseph Strubinger, wife of a St. Louis lawyer.

She really headed toward her present war job during the first World war. She took a wartime typist's job and devoted her spare time to speeches pushing Liberty Bond sales.

By the time she had reached an office manager's job in '23 she had become so impressed with the problems women met in business that she dropped her office work and began to study law with the idea of helping her sex all she could. She was graduated from Kansas City University Law School and admitted to the Missouri bar in '28.

Stays In Service

The community spirit she had acquired during those Liberty Bond speeches never died. When the depression jolted thousands of women out of jobs she was up to her neck in efforts to help them.

"Back in the '20's I had felt that most business women were like vocational butterflies," she said. "They would not invest time and energy in training and experience. When the depression came I found the butterflies of the 20's with singed wings.

"Thousands ow women had lost their jobs because of faulty training and faulty job outlook. They needed training in economics and social problems as well as training in skills. So I founded the training school for secretaries."

She says: "Women won't lose their femininity because of the work they are doing in this war. But they will lose some of their glitter and gloss. In their place will come some old-fashioned qualities — kindliness, friendliness, usefulness and the kind of charm that is not dislodged by a smudge of grease or a broken fingernail."

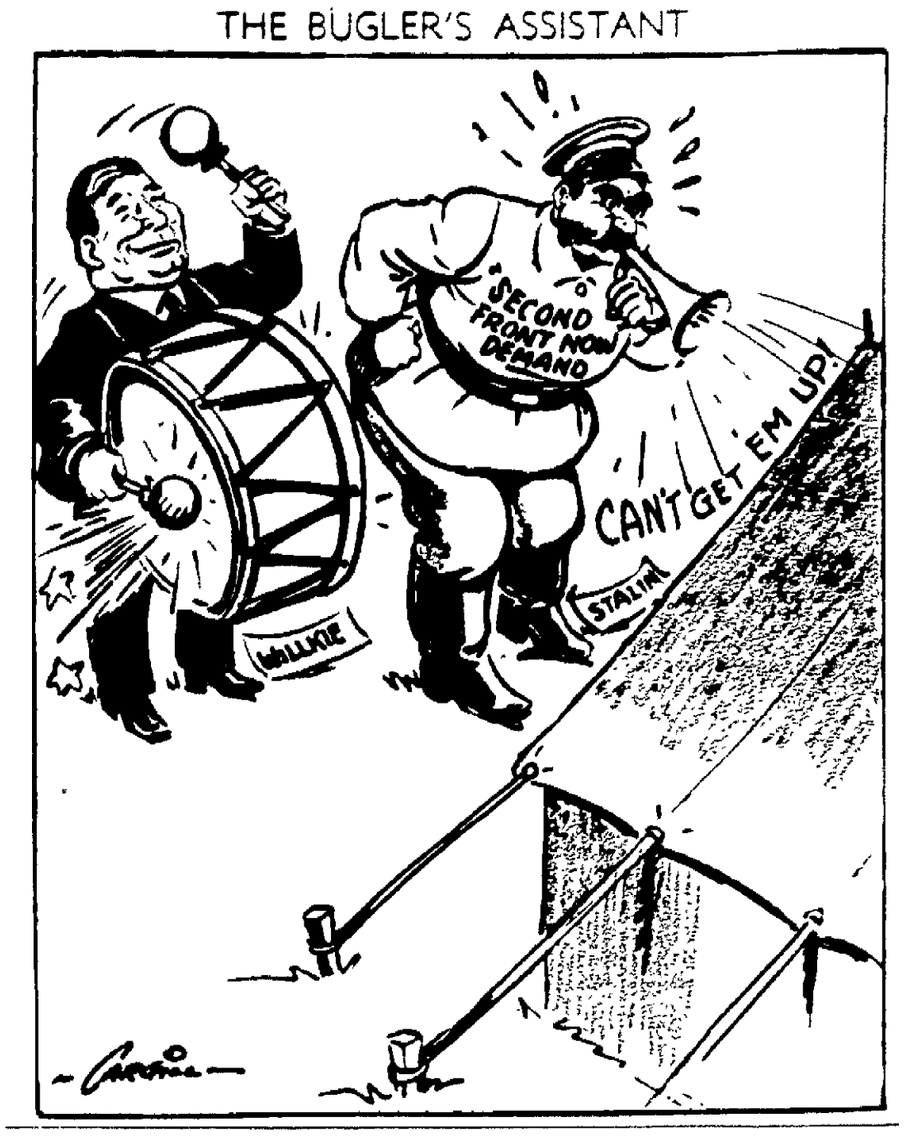
THE BUGLER'S ASSISTANT



The Farmer's War Production Job

His Wartime Problems Need More Sympathetic Understanding.

THE vital public problem of maintaining agricultural production sufficient to meet wartime demands of the United States and its allies was raised only incidentally in congressional debate on the farm price and wage stabilization bill.

The same problem is presented squarely in the growing labor shortage—a shortage serious for farmers as well as industrial employers this year and destined to be worse next year. The agricultural question of the hour is how to guarantee an adequate level of farm production while the rest of the population concentrates on war production. The secretary of agriculture, Claude Wickard, and Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the war manpower commission, have expressed public concern over a farm labor shortage in 1943.

The inflation committee of National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, in a comprehensive report made available last month, expressed concern over widespread misunderstanding of agriculture's wartime situation. "It seems difficult for other groups to realize that farmers are workers, with the most of them being skilled workers and that a farmer's wages depends on two factors (1) the prices that he receives for his products and (2) the costs incurred in producing such products," declared the committee. "After paying such costs, the remainder is the farmer's wage. In the production of foods, wage costs exceed the sum of all other costs. Part of such costs is reflected in the increased prices the farmers pay for the things necessary to produce foods and the other part is reflected in the wages paid employes. Since the beginning of this war, there has been a drastic increase in both of these costs."

EMPHASIZING the vital necessity of agricultural production, the committee quotes Dr. W. I. Myers, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics of Cornell college of agriculture to the effect that prevention of inflation is "important but secondary." Dr. Myers is quoted as follows: "In the present public enthusiasm for the war against inflation, there is a tendency to forget that the first job of the nation is to win the war against the Axis. In order to do this, we must obtain maximum production of munitions and food."

Concerning the trouble farmers are having with labor and cost of production, the committee declares that skilled farm labor cannot be blamed for giving up wages ranging from $75 to $100 a month in agriculture when it can receive $10 a day plus bonuses in other lines of employment. "It is, therefore, most disturbing," the committee explains, "to note that every increase in the prices of foods has been generally assumed to be the result of the increase in the people's buying power, thus ignoring the fact that such increases in prices have as a rule been no more than the increase in production costs." In other words, the higher price of foods has not been reflected in the income of farmers. Their costs have been rising. They are no different from other employers in that respect.

The committee has only limited confidence in the efficacy of price ceilings, holding it to be self-evident that a price ceiling on any commodity restricts production of the commodity to quantities that can be produced at that price. This becomes, therefore, the nub of the primary farm problem, which is adequate production of vitally needed food. There must be nothing done in the hope of preventing inflation that will curtail agricultural production through operation of the ordinary laws governing supply. In a word, it would be catastrophic if the government diminished the food supply through failure to understand the farm problem in a period of rising costs and decreasing labor supply. "There is grave danger," declares the committee, referring to the apparent policy of letting wages and prices increase to meet the cost of production, "that we will find ourselves in a vicious circle in which food prices are chasing wages and wages are chasing food prices in an endless round. This spells inflation. Rather, both wage earners and farmers, while maintaining living wages and living farm prices, should strive zealously to increase the production of essential commodities. This would tend to prevent inflation."

However, since increase in the production of consumers' durable goods is made impossible by war production, these should be rationed, with excess buying power absorbed by taxation.

ONE of the members of the committee is John D. Miller, president emeritus of the National Council of Farm Cooperatives. Quentin Reynolds, D. W. Brooks and Homer L. Brinkley are the other members. Mr. Miller, one of the founders of the cooperative movement in American agriculture, foresaw in his address as retiring president last January that unless the government put ceilings on wages as well as farm prices there would be trouble.

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Sunday, Oct. 9, 1932.

Announcement of the approaching marriage of Miss Bernice Glasener, daughter of Stewart G. Glasener of Homer street, and John Howard Nichols of Cleveland was made at a tea at the Marion City club when Miss Jeanne Berg entertained in honor of Miss Glasener. The wedding was to take place Nov. 9.

Walter Lockwood of Toledo was visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George O. Lockwood of West Pleasant street.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Stout of Harding Highway-E entertained at dinner in honor of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stout of Chicago, who were recently married.

R. P. Murphy, Marvin C. Thomas and George W. Sorrels represented Marion Typographical Union at the fifty-first semi-annual session of the Ohio Typographical conference held in Columbus.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Monday, Oct. 9, 1922.

The mysterious double murder of Rev. Dr. Edward Wheeler Hall, wealthy pastor of a fashionable New Brunswick, N. J., church, and Mrs. James Mills, his beautiful choir leader, reached what was described as "a sensational climax" when a 19-year-old boy was arrested on a charge of first degree murder and his young chum was held as a material witness. Dr. Hall and his companion were victims of mistaken identity, according to a confession alleged to have been made by the accused youth. The case, however, was destined to end up as an unsolved mystery after many years in the New Jersey courts.

"Post mortems" were being held on the World Series which closed Sunday with a victory for the New York Giants over the New York Yanks. There was a tendency to place the major blame on Miller Huggins, diminutive manager of the Yankees, and it was generally conceded that he was destined to lose his job. A sports commentator, writing on the situation, said: "The Yankees need a two-fisted, dominating individual who will kick them all the way from the bench into the field and back again. They would play good baseball for a man like that."

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Drollinger of West Church street and a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Melby of Cherry street.

Dr. and Mrs. G. T. Harding of East Center street returned from Lorain, where they attended a meeting of Civil War veterans and friends.

The twenty-third annual convention of the Ohio Retail Grocers and Meat Dealers association opened at the Y. M. C. A. Presiding for the opening program was Lewis Scherff, vice president of the Marion Retail Grocers and Meat Dealers association.

The Altrurian club held its first meeting of the season with its new president, Mrs. C. L. Van Arsdall of South High street.

Miss Winona Hughes was hostess to the Woman's club at her home on West Church street.

OBITUARY
•Brief History of Mrs. Milton Isler.
Mrs. Amy Roberts Isler, daughter of Levi and Lettice Lodwig Roberts, was born in Radnor township, Delaware county, Ohio, on August 8, 1876.
On March 8, 1900, she was united in marriage with Milton S. Isler, by the Rev. Robert Hughes, then pastor of the First Baptist church, Prospect, Ohio.
To this union were born six children, all of whom survive.
Mrs Isler was a lifelong member of the Prospect Baptist church, and for many years served as treasurer of the Ladies' Aid society and as devotional leader of the Missionary society. The church, in the whole program of its work, was always very dear to her heart. She was also affiliated with the Bethlehem grange and the East Side Garden club.
Mrs. Isler passed away on Wednesday evening, Sept. 30, at 7 o'clock of a heart attack, attaining the age of 66 years, one month and 22 days.
The following survive:
Her husband, Mr. Milton S. Isler, together with one daughter, Mrs. Geneva Dobberstein of Prospect; five sons—David of Dayton, O., Edwin of Urbana, O., Robert, Arthur, and John F. of near Prospect, O. Two sisters—Mrs. Arthur Baxter of Radnor, O., and Mrs. Maggie Main of Harlingen, Texas. Two brothers—Quincy Roberts of New Castle, Pa., and Emery Roberts of Prospect. She also leaves 7 grandchildren, 7 nieces, 9 nephews, and many other relatives and friends.
Concerning Mrs. Isler many Christian tributes could be spoken, but her Christian modesty would not desire these mentioned. Suffice it to say that in her home, in her church, and in her community, she lived the life of a true servant of God. Concerning her the words of the sacred writer in Proverbs, 31st chapter, verses 27-28, ring true: "She looketh well to the ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness.
"Her children arise up, and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her."

We sincerely desire to thank our many friends, relatives and neighbors for their countless beautiful deeds of service and expressions of sympathy during our hours of great bereavement at the passing of our beloved wife and mother.

Bricker Urges Support of Chest Campaigns

CLEVELAND, Oct. 3—The attitude of "many people of the world toward America will be determined by the success or failure" of war chest campaigns, Gov. Bricker asserts.

"In the face of human suffering the world around and . . . complex and multiplying problems at home, our storehouse of mercy and good will, of charity and helpfulness, is in danger of being depleted," he declared in an address opening the Greater Cleveland war chest campaign.

Bricker urged Ohioans to donate generously to war chest and other drives augmenting the country's war effort.

FARMERS

He then quoted from an article he had written in 1918 to show how wages affect farm prices. Using gluten, a byproduct of corn, which is a feed for dairy cattle, as an illustration he had explained at that time how the plowing, harrowing and cultivating of corn all meant wages. Every step of production through the growth of the crop to its delivery in the market, meant wages. Its transportation on the railroad meant wages.

Consequently, he continued, high wages meant high food prices. "For the wage earner to say that he must have higher wages so that he can buy food at the present high prices, or for the farmer to say that he must have higher prices so that he can buy labor at the present high rate of wage, offers no solution for the problem. Is it not clear that there is one and only one remedy and that is, that without reducing wages or increasing the prices of farm products the quantities produced in a given period of time should be increased so that the costs per unit be decreased?"

Mr. Moller concluded in 1919 if farmers were willing to join hands with all others in working to the limit until the processes of production could overtake consumption but that they naturally were not willing to work alone. It is evident from the report of the National Council of Farm Cooperatives committee on inflation that he and his fellow committeemen are still of the same opinion. Farmers cannot do their job which is to raise food unless they are given the intelligent cooperation of all other factors in the national economy.

With America In Danger Of Doctor Shortage

BROOKS FLETCHER

Here Is The Question

In face of the Government's warning of this serious Doctor Shortage, should the voters of this 8th District ask our Doctor Congressman to leave his Hospital Clinic, abandon his profession to stay in Washington, when a doctor could be so much more useful at home helping other over-worked doctors take care of the sick? In war-time men should serve where, from training and experience, they are qualified to serve best. In war-time it is dangerous to keep in Congress the politician who is against everything.

Why Brooks Fletcher Should Be Our Next Congressman

Many say: "We are going to vote for Brooks Fletcher for Congress on Nov. 3rd because we do not think it is right to keep in Congress from this 8th District the Doctor politician whose record shows he opposes everything, criticizes everything, finds fault with everything, is against everything and voted wrong against all of America's early Defense Plans to provide our soldiers with guns, ships and planes to protect their lives and save America."

What The Plain Dealer Calls "Hitler-Jap Helpers" Should Be Kept At Home — Not In Congress

People are saying: "In an All-Out War for America we should send All-Out Americans to Congress. And Brooks Fletcher is that kind of American. He should be our next Congressman." On Nov. 3rd vote for Brooks Fletcher for Congress. He will back up our Government in program for winning the war and for winning the peace after the war.

Buy U.S. WAR BONDS

HOW many times have you heard those words?
How many times have you seen them in print? They're the kind of words that gain strength with every repetition — because you know the meaning behind them! You know that it takes money to fight a war: billions of dollars. And you know that that money has to come from each and every one of us — whether we sit behind a desk, stand on an assembly line, or stay at home. So when you see that urge over and over again—"Buy U. S. War Bonds" — you stop to think whether you're really buying all you can. Ten per cent of your pay is swell: but maybe there are some non-essentials which you just haven't gotten around to doing without: silly little expenditures that are nothing more than self-indulgences. You know — our boys fighting on land, on sea and in the air — they're not getting any pampering: they're fighting this war with bombs and guns and bayonets — and plenty of them won't come home — their lives are at stake. You're not asked to match that — but every fighting man, and Uncle Sam, asks you to buy more War Bonds!

TAKE YOUR CHANGE in War Savings Stamps — or at least part of it. You'll never miss the small amounts, and you'll be surprised at how quickly you accumulate enough War Savings Stamps to buy another Bond! We'll be glad to start you off — with your War Stamp Album in 10c, 25c, 50c, $1 and $5 denominations.

MINERS TO ACT ON LONGER WORK WEEK

Committee Reports Production Above 1941.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Oct. 9—With John L. Lewis' hold twice tested and twice found firm, the United Mine Workers of America moved on to new fields today as their 37th convention took up a long list of proposed resolutions.

One resolution on support of the war was expected to touch off debate because of Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes' request for extension of the 35-hour work week of coal miners. Lewis, UMW president, replied he would authorize extension only if it was shown to be essential to prosecution of the war.

The resolutions committee reported that 1942 production of bituminous coal and lignite up to Sept. 30 was 433,000,000 tons, or 17 per cent ahead of the comparable 1941 period, and anthracite 44,000,000 tons, or 6 per cent greater.

The official UMW stand is that mining and transportation work together most efficiently on the 35-hour week.

P.-T.A. TO HEAD LEVY CAMPAIGN

Council Arranges To Sponsor Support of 2-Mill School Tax.

An objective of the Marion City P.-T.A. council and the P.-T.A. units for the coming weeks will be sponsoring a campaign in the interest of the two-mill levy to carry on the school program, which will be placed before the voters of the city at the November election. Plans for the campaign were launched at a meeting of the council at Central Junior High school when the members voted to finance the distribution of literature in the interest of the success of the levy, and Supt. E. E. Holt gave a talk on the school program and the necessity of the levy.

Mrs. T. D. Bird, vice president, presided and the meeting opened with patriotic singing directed by W. E. Orcutt. A report on the Lucky Bag was given by Mrs. Damon Spicer who announced that $451.35 was netted in the drive, and Mrs. W. E. Orcutt, defense chairman, reported on a meeting called by Mayor Spare last Monday night to discuss transportation problems. The council voted to cooperate with any plans for conservation of transportation facilities vital to the war program.

Mr. Holt, in his talk, emphasized that the funds to be raised by the two-mill levy are vital to the school program and will be used only for the current operating expenses. He presented figures compiled by a research expert at Ohio State university showing that Marion's cost per pupil in the education of the pupils was exceptionally low in comparison with other cities of comparable size. The average cost per pupil, the report shows is $79.18 in Marion, compared to $110 in other cities. Marion is 13th in the list of 15 cities in the state in the list of expenditures for education per pupil.

Marion's school program is not expensive, employes are not overpaid, instead the school is operated on a very low cost basis, Mr. Holt said.

In presenting the accomplishments of the schools during the last few years Mr. Holt pointed out that the vocational training program had been expanded, building conditions have been improved and there have been salary increases, but not in keeping with the increase in living conditions, he pointed out. Because of the increased enrollment this year, it was necessary to add five new teachers to the staff.

Mr. Holt said that in spite of difficulties in employing teachers experienced this year, Marion had a very fine teaching staff and stated that the board of education had been most cooperative in the school program. In closing he expressed the hope that the voters of the city would see fit to approve the levy.

Present were representatives of various organizations invited by the council to attend the meeting.

HERBERT SEES NEW TAXES IN DEMOCRATIC PROGRAM

Attorney General Addresses Club at Galion.

By The Associated Press

GALION, O., Oct. 9—Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert told a meeting of the Republican Women's club here last night that "the Democratic state platform is either phoney or they are planning new taxes."

Immediate distribution of the $20,000,000 state surplus in the face of certain decrease in state revenues and promised increased state expenditures would make additional taxes inevitable, Herbert asserted in a prepared address.

Democratic leaders have called for distribution of the surplus to local sub-divisions.

Gov. Bricker, campaigning for reelection, said in an address earlier this week there would be a surplus of at least $20,000,000 in the state treasury at year-end and asserted the money made it possible for the Republican administration to operate for the next two years at least without levying new taxes.

of tanks and infantrymen. German planes carried the bombing of the besieged garrison into its 46th day.

(There was no official comment on a Berlin intimation that the assault operations were to be dropped in favor of bombardment, but all Soviet reports indicated unabated fighting.)

The army newspaper Red Star said numerically superior enemy forces launched a local offensive against the workers' settlement Wednesday and achieved a breakthrough which led to the occupation of two streets.

Its dispatch declared the German aim was to break through to the river and cut the Red army in two.

Offensive operations were maintained by Red army forces against the German flank northwest of Stalingrad and a fresh penetration of the Nazi fortifications was announced.

The newspaper Izvestia pictured the city as a beacon of smoke and flame as it neared the close of the seventh week of siege. Incessant cannonading marked the struggle.

Attacks Come Steadily

Some Red army unit, in the factory settlement are called upon to meet five or six attacks daily, Izvestia said.

Communiques reported the repulse of other attacks in sectors of the central Caucasus, the central (Moscow), northwestern and Leningrad fronts.

A guerrilla detachment was credited with derailment of 16 German trains in the Orel region south of Moscow during September.

(The Russian high command's midnight communique ignored a German intimation that axis infantry and engineers would be withdrawn from the bloody siege, leaving the field to heavy artillery and dive bombers.

(A Berlin propaganda broadcast last night declared the strategic objective already achieved and this opened the way for a retreat of the Germans and their axis allies from the Volga inferno.

(London military observers treated the broadcast with caution, but expressed belief it indicated Hitler was preparing for another winter along the Russian front.)

• • •

LONDON, Oct. 9—The necessity of conserving valuable shock troops and engineering detachments which had been suffering severe casualties in Stalingrad was regarded by competent London sources today as the factor underlying a German assertion that immediate attempts to storm the city will cease.

Berlin broadcasts quoted German spokesmen as saying the task of reducing the Volga stronghold, after 46 days of head-on assault would be left to artillery and bombers.

The London sources advised, however, against undue optimism or the assumption the German people were being conditioned to receive word of a possible withdrawal from the immediate vicinity of Stalingrad.

Harding Junior Varsity Defeats Richwood Team

By scoring a 7-0 victory over the Richwood junior varsity last night under the lights of Harding stadium, Harding Jay-cee football squad recorded its first victory in seven starts on the Union county team.

Capturing a 70-yard second quarter drive, Halfback Jack Koeppen, a junior enrolled at Edison Junior High school, raced 20 yards to score the winning touchdown. On the try for the extra point a Harding back punched across the goal but a Harding offsides penalty nullified the score. Harding elected Guard Frank Louck to try for the point by placement from the 4-yard line but his kick was good.

It was the first victory against one defeat for the Jayvees this year. Fisher previously eked out a 6-0 victory.

A return game tentatively set for Oct. 29 has been arranged between Richwood and the Harding Reserves. The return game will be played on the Richwood home field.

TAX BILL

features of the program drew the fire of President Philip Murray of the CIO, who declared in a letter to Vice President Wallace and senate leaders that the revenue measure was developing into an "outrageous caricature of the carefully planned treasury bill."

Murray called for adoption of treasury proposals designed, he said, to plug "a number of tax evasion loopholes through which wealthy individuals and corporations have been escaping making the fullest contribution to the war effort."

Taft said he believed that even if the victory tax won final approval by congress it likely would be converted later into a withholding device to force loans to the government to aid in financing the war.

"It would be an easy matter," he told reporters, "to alter the effect of this proposed tax by merely giving taxpayers bonds payable after the war for the amount taken from them, instead of retaining a portion of the money as direct revenue and rebating the remainder."

How Tax Hits

As approved by the finance committee, the victory tax would take 5 per cent of all individual gross income above $624 yearly, with credits for post-war rebates or current debt and insurance payments being granted to taxpayers. Single persons could claim maximum credits of 25 per cent of the tax, with a limit of $500, married persons 40 per cent, plus 2 per cent for each dependent, with a maximum of $2,500.

If this were made a compulsory savings device, Taft said it probably would be necessary to incorporate into the tax structure a retail sales levy of 5 or 10 per cent to provide the direct taxes the treasury needs.

The senate disposed of one controversial issue yesterday, voting 52 to 34 against taxing the income from future issues of state and local bonds.

EX-BANKER HELD

Former Cleveland banker who was sentenced to the penitentiary in 1933 for embezzlement, C. Sterling Smith, above, has been arrested in New York as a smuggler, accused of operating a large ring for smuggling gold into the United States from Canada. Smith, out of prison since May, 1938, once was president of the now defunct Standard Trust bank in Cleveland. He was sentenced to two to 37 years in the Ohio penitentiary after being convicted of embezzling the bank's funds.

MacARTHUR DECORATES ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

Gen. Douglas MacArthur (right) in an unprecedented action somewhere in New Guinea pins the U. S. army's silver star award on Vern Haugland, The Associated Press war correspondent, who fought his way out of the dense New Guinea jungle after having been lost for 43 days when forced to bail out of an army plane. The plane ran out of fuel between Australia and Port Moresby, New Guinea, during a storm. MacArthur said he made the award to Haugland "as an outward symbol of the devotion and fortitude with which you have done your duty." The ceremony took place in a U. S. army hospital. This picture was radioed from Australia to San Francisco.

message to the brave men, particularly the Filipinos who were fighting side by side with the Americans:

"It is laughable how General MacArthur hides the true standing of the U. S. A. F. F. E. which is now dispersed. Everything that he says is mere propaganda. For instance the retaking of seven vital points by the U. S. Pacific fleet or the sinking of several Japanese transports or the bagging of hundreds of Japanese planes.

"We cannot deny the suffering and bad luck of General MacArthur and his subordinates who are forced to fight without food or anything to distract their troubled minds. Mosquito bitten (beaten) and all because of living under the sun, the boys are weakening in their fight.

"You should consider whether the continuance of this useless fight is God's will or not."

"That last paragraph is what burns me up," his mother said vehemently. "What do Japs know about God?"

Ship Scuttled

The tender on which Bevis served is one which the navy department in April reported officially as having been scuttled.

"How does it feel to scuttle your own ship," he was asked.

"Just like it would to stand in a street and watch your house burn down."

Bevis was a member of the scuttling crew.

When a ship is scuttled everything is done that a man in a machine shop has been taught not to do, he said. Wrenches are thrown into the machinery, every single workable part is smashed beyond any chance of repair, sledge hammers are wielded and by the time the men are finished the ship is a shell of scrap.

When the demolition crew was finished the men pushed off in small boats for Corregidor and another task crew took the ship out of the bay and sank it.

Bevis had thought up a plan to save part of his personal belongings in any eventuality. He left part of his clothes on board ship and took the rest ashore. After scuttling the ship there was no time to get back to Bataan and he arrived in Corregidor with only the clothes on his back and a few toilet supplies.

Hazardous Trip

The five-mile trip from Bataan to Corregidor was through shark-infested waters. What amazed many of the men was that some of their companions who had been too ill and too weak from malaria to stand on their feet and fight any longer plunged into the water and swam the five miles.

On fateful Dec. 7, 1941—it was Dec. 8 in the Philippines—Bevis was on board ship in Manila Bay. The men sat on deck and watched the bombing of an air field, and at night, with Manila blacked out, they could watch the tracer bullets. The next day the Japs "really came over," he said, and the men had to take to cover.

He watched the bombing of Manila and the "blowing up" of Cavite and then his ship moved into Marveles Bay at the entrance to Manila bay. Christmas day the ship moved on up on Bataan and remained there until April 9 when orders were given to scuttle the ship and go to Corregidor.

On Bataan Bevis saw General MacArthur, "a man's man," he described him, and General Wainright, who recently was officially announced a prisoner of the Japanese. He was particularly impressed with General Wainright's knowledge of the Philippines.

Although nothing official was said, the men on Bataan "knew something was cooking" during the days preceding General MacArthur's escape to Australia. It was days after he left that word was given out of the commander's safe arrival "down under."

Went on Fighting

Bevis has little to say of what happened after his trip by submarine except that it was to another base and that he was then attached to the submarine's tender and was on it until he arrived on the west coast recently.

He has high praise for Australians, whom he has seen in his travels, and for their hospitality, but he can't believe that people living inland in the United States realize that a war is going on. The west coast, he said, is wide awake to the seriousness of World War II, but the farther inland he traveled, the more he was impressed by the lack of awareness.

Bevis has been a navy fan since he was 10 years old, although his mother never would believe it until he finally enlisted. To him the navy is a career.

He enlisted in Marion in January of 1939 after hounding Recruiting Officer Pickett week in and week out for months. In those peacetime days the navy was not carrying on an intensive recruiting program and the arch of one of his feet wasn't too strong. Officer Pickett sent four men for examination and told Bevis he could go along in case one man failed to pass the physical examination. That's what happened and Bevis was in the navy.

Early Training

He trained at the Great Lakes naval training station at Great Lakes, Ill., and at a trade school at Norfolk, Va. From December of 1938, until May of 1939 he was stationed on a heavy cruiser and then he was sent by transport to the Asiatic station. From then until Dec. 7 the Asiatic fleet moved back and forth between China and the Philippines.

His mother's joy at having her son home is deep beyond expression. Last December, after the bombing of Manila she received a telegram that he was safe. In February she received a printed form on which her son had marked that he had received no letters from her. She had written many times. On Mother's day she received a telegram and three days later she was notified that he was missing. Early in July came a letter from the navy personnel bureau that he was safe with his command, "somewhere in the South Pacific."

She has a son-in-law, Second Lt. Earl W. Camp of Marion, in service with the air forces postal service in England. A former carrier out of the Marion postoffice, Lieutenant Camp enlisted last December and has been overseas since mid-summer.

Former Shop Worker

Bevis, a graduate of Harding High school in 1936 was a machinist at the Marion Steam Shovel Co. prior to enlisting in the navy. At Harding he took a vocational course and he has the heartiest praise for L. H. Rieker, coordinator, R. A. Todd, Mr. Roberts and Mr. Koenig.

"With the training I'd had at Harding it was like taking candy from a baby to get through the training school at Norfolk," he said.

Survey Shows Drivers Holding Speed Down

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9 — If results of a seven-county survey in northeastern Ohio are typical of the rest of the state, Ohioans are observing closely the new rubber-saving, 35-mile-an-hour speed limit.

Driving 211 miles on six main-traveled highways over a period of two days, a Cleveland newsman reported only 10 cars passed his automobile at speeds exceeding the limit.

Keeping his speed to 35 miles or less, he passed 152 cars—45 of them at a speed of 30 miles an hour or under.

The survey was made in Cuyahoga, Lorain, Summit, Medina, Portage and Geauga counties.

NEED SEWING MACHINES FOR RED CROSS WORK

More Equipment Sought By Forest Lawn Group.

One of the numerous women's groups sewing for the Marion County chapter of the American Red Cross is made up of women from the Forest Lawn Presbyterian church, who meet Wednesdays of each week at the community house.

While a great deal is accomplished each week more work could be turned out if there were additional sewing machines, the women reported today. This week's quota was 15 pairs of overalls, which would have been completed had there been sewing machines enough to take care of the machine stitching.

There are two machines at the community house at present and there are women enough to turn out work on at least five more. Anyone having a machine to loan is asked to call either Mrs. C. E. Willoughby at 8924 or Mrs. A. D. Imbody at 2443. The machines will be well cared for and will be used only for the Red Cross work.

BUNA S TIRES TO WEAR WELL

Be About 90 Per of Natural Rubber.

Associated Press

..., Oct. 9 — Mo... expect their buna S ...per tires — when ... get them—to have 90 per cent of the wearing qualities of natural rubber.

This was disclosed in an appendix, just released, to the report of the special rubber survey committee headed by Bernard M Baruch.

Buna S, foundation of the synthetic program, is "particularly well adapted as a material for tires," the appendix stated. Besides its 90 per cent wearability compared with crude rubber, it is "apparently satisfactory" for inner tubes, the committee said, and also is to play a part in the recapping program.

"With suitable compounding successful tires in sizes up to 7.00 can be made entirely out of buna S," the Baruch committee reported. "In the larger truck, heavy duty, and combat sizes a certain amount of natural rubber has thus far been found necessary in the sidewalls and carcasses of the tires."

However, in the committee's opinion, not more than 20 per cent by weight of a heavy buna S tire would have to be crude rubber, and the tire industry, the report stated, "believes that this percentage may be reduced to 10 per cent, perhaps lower."

Manufacturing efficiency is not at a uniformly high level, the report showed, but "very rapid developments are being made."

The committee reported that neoprene is the synthetic most nearly similar in its general utility to natural rubber, although it is about one third heavier. Its wearing qualities are about 25 per cent greater than crude rubber under severe service and about 10 per cent under crude rubber for ordinary driving, the report stated.

Butyl synthetic, of which 62,000 tons are expected to come in during 1943, was rated capable of giving only 40 to 50 per cent of the mileage of crude rubber. However it was rated "promising" as a recapping material.

Thiokol, of which 24,000 tons are expected to be produced in 1943, was described as a "quickly produceable material for recapping natural rubber tires" and as being highly resistant to oils and other chemicals.

"As a recapping material its wearing qualities are definitely inferior to butyl and about equal to the present types of reclaimed rubber," the report said.

As a recap material, thiokol was rated "good" for inner tubes, "unsatisfactory."

Flexon was described as "an inferior type of butyl but one which can be produced with a minimum use of critical materials in the production plant." Its mileage in tests is not more than 40 per cent that of crude rubber the report stated, but the opinion was expressed that its quality would be considerably improved as product on techniques are developed.

PRESIDENTS SET FOR GAME AT LIMA CENTRAL TONIGH

Absence of Tackle Don Kay and Back LeRoy Harvey May Result in First Harding Defeat.

HOPES of Harding High school football followers for a victory over Lima Central tonight at Lima rank to a new low with Coach Vic Dorris' announcement that Tackle Don Kay, one of five veteran letter men on this year's team, would probably be out of tonight's game.

Kay missed yesterday's brief practice because of a throat infection. Coach Dorris learned last night that Kay had been ordered to bed by the attending physician. He was reportedly running a temperature late last night.

If Kay fails to improve sufficiently by game time tonight, he will be the second lettermen absent for the crucial battle in Lima's Municipal stadium. LeRoy Harvey, veteran Harding fullback, suffered a head injury in last week's Mt. Vernon game. He was among spectators at the Harding Reserve-Richwood game at the stadium last night. Harvey indicated that he could probably be back in uniform in time for the all-important Allianc game next Friday. The game will probably decide the N.C.O. conference championship.

Orth To Start

Vernal Orth, an 170-pound junior, will be Coach Dorris' starting choice if Kay fails.

Calvin Scott, a standout performer in Harding's opening games, will be shifted into Harvey's fullback spot and Elvin Beach, sophomore brother of Roland Beach, who starred for Harding teams several years ago, will replace Scott at quarterback.

Coach Dorris will have Fritz Ruhl and Russ Midlam in readiness to fill in for Beach in case the sophomore star fails to solve the tricky Lima offense.

In seeking victory tonight Harding has a double-barrelled objective. First, the Presidents are after their third straight victory of the 1942 campaign and, second, the locals are out to erase a 0-0 tie, one of two blackmarks on the 1941 Harding record. A 20-7 win over the Yellow Jackets of Mt. Vernon last week brushed off that team's 0-0 tie with the Hardings in 1941.

Lima Central, winner over Bryan 13-6 in its opener and loser to Toledo Scott by 14-0 last week, will be heavy favorites, according to Harding Coach Dorris, in tonight's game, the next to the last non-conference game of the President's 1942 program.

Nine Lettermen Back

A total of nine lettermen are available to Coach Robert Schertzer and a bevy of other equally-talented stars are also at hand. Coach Schertzer, one time disciple of Paul E. Brown, the former Massillon coaching sensation now turning tricks for Ohio State in the Big Ten, uses the same style employed by the Massillon eleven so effectively.

Halfback Jack Malsch has been the keyman in the Lima offensive since Halfback Bowman was injured in the first quarter of the Bryan game.

Probable starting line-ups are:

Harding		Lima Central
Williams (C)	LE	Harrod
Orth	LT	Howard
Dixon	LG	Foltz
Hurst	C	Kennedy
Price	RG	Buchanan
Fazio	RT	Kirkpatrick
Benedict	RE	Bishop
Beach	QB	Orchard
Jenkins	LH	Malsch
Young	RH	Vucovich
Scott	FB	Brentlinger

Chicago Cub Executive Is Against War-Time Chang

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 9—James Gallagher, general manager of the Chicago Cubs, has sounded a dissenting note over several proposed changes in baseball schedules to be considered at the annual meeting of the two major leagues in December.

Gallagher disagreed with Will Harridge, president of the American league, who indicated several changes were in order. These include a contemplated switch from four road trips a season for each club to three and the possibility of a shorter season, with 140 instead of the customary 154 games.

Gallagher said he could see no necessity for cramming 154 games into a shorter period or cutting down to 140 games per club.

"Our business is to provide entertainment, so why not stretch it out as long as possible," he declared.

HIGH PIN SCORE

CHICAGO, Oct. 9 —Dolores Colbeck is giving Chicago women bowlers some fancy marks to shoot at. In league play she has topped 200 in six games, including one score of 220.

WATERBURY, Conn., Oct. 9—Sonny Horne, 152-pound Niles, O., fighter, scored a technical knockout over Oscar Suggs, 150, of New Bedford, Mass., last night. Horne stopped the veteran scrapper in the last stanza of their eight-round bout. Suggs suffered a fractured nose.

MACPHAIL'S POST OPEN

BROOKLYN, Oct. 9 — The Brooklyn Dodgers haven't filled the vacancy created by the resignation of President Larry MacPhail, but they are narrowing the field. "We're very active and I can say we're making progress," declared Vice President James G. Mulvey. "More than that I can't say."

PITT, GREAT LAKES MEET IN CLEVELAND

Municipal Stadium Scene of Saturday Game.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9—Cleveland's Municipal stadium is listed as neutral battle ground for tomorrow afternoon's struggle between the Great Lakes Naval Training station and the Pittsburgh Panthers, but the turf of the huge Dorfman arena will be familiar footing for three dependables on the Bluejacket squad.

Steve Belichick played there as a hard-plunging fullback for Western Reserve university, and later for the Detroit Lions. Rudy Mucha 225-pound blocking back, and Howard (Red) Hickey, an end, tore up the same stadium sod last fall as teammates with the Cleveland Rams.

Ohio State makes four contributions to the rugged Bluejacket line—tackles Jack Stephenson and Jim Daniell, and Guards Vic Marino and Gart Zarnas. Another erstwhile Buckeye state Bluejacket is Johnny Popov, who starred at the University of Cincinnati.

With favorable weather a crowd of about 25,000 is expected.

STANFORD AND IRISH SEEK FOR VICTORY

Changes in Lineup Made for Their Clash Saturday.

By The Associated Press

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 9 — Stanford and Notre Dame, attempting to rise from the model T's rumble seat and pile into the driver's position, meet Saturday, each searching for their first 1942 victory.

Frank Leahy, Notre Dame coach, made a big change this week by taking the responsibility of signal calling from junior quarterback Angelo Bertelli. Harry Wright, senior right guard, who as quarterback last year helped direct the Irish through an undefeated season, will call the plays against Stanford.

The move was made in hope Bertelli's passing would improve.

The Irish will be greatly bolstered if Owen (Dippy) Evans, last year's best ground gainer and scorer, is able to play after an early season injury. The left halfback appeared in workouts this week for the first time in a month.

Injuries continue to weaken the Irish. Bob Livingstone, who has been carrying on for Evans, and Wally Ziemba, regular center, are laid up. Deepening the gloom was the absence of Leahy at his workouts yesterday because of illness.

John Dreher, Champion of County, Won All Five Major "Y" Tourneys.

Winners of the Y. M. C. A. sponsored Marion county tennis tournament are pictured above.

John Dreher, veteran Marion county net star, has been inducted into the army. This year Dreher won all five of the principal Y Tennis club tournaments. He defeated Walter Long for the singles championship in the round robin tourney earlier in the season. He won over Bill Griffith in the Marion Steam Shovel Co. court singles. Teamed with Day Hurst he won the county doubles championship, defeating Ralph Carhart and Walter Davis in the finals. Later he beat Dave Rochford for the county men's single title.

For 15 years before entering the army, Dreher was employed at the Pollak Steel Co. He played three years of basketball and football while at Harding High school and later was a member of the semi-pro Isaly Dairy Co. team which won the state championship.

Dreher won the county's men's singles title in 1933, defeating Walter Long, and in 1939, winning over Bill Foster.

Day Hurst, a former Harding High basketball, football and track star, is now enrolled as a freshman engineering student at Carnegie Tech, where he is starring as a member of the varsity football team.

Rochford, now a student at Notre Dame, won the county junior title and was runner-up to Dreher in the county men's tourney. Dreher defeated Rochford 6-1, 6-2, 2-6, 3-6 and 7-5.

Greg Graham, 10-year-old son of golfer Bob Graham, defeated John Stuckey for the boys' championship. Greg is a fifth grade student at Greenwood school.

Undefeated Negro Teams Meet in Chicago Tonight

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 9—Two undefeated Negro college football teams, Tuskegee, Ala., Institute, and Wilberforce university, tangle tonight at Soldier field in the 13th game of their series. Tuskegee won last year 26 to 8, but Wilberforce holds a six to four edge in the series, two of the games having been ties.

BUSY WEEK-END SET FOR OHIO GRIDDERS

O. S. U.-Trojan Game Saturday Heads Buckeye Bill.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 9—Six night games, five Ohio conference frays, a dozen contests with out-of-state squads — that's the menu being dished up this week-end for Ohio college football fans.

The headliner, of course, is Saturday's struggle between Ohio State's flashy Bucks and the Trojans of Southern California, expected to attract 60,000 fans.

All of Friday's schedule is under the lights. Findlay invades New Concord for an Ohio conference game with Muskingum. Wilberforce and Tuskegee meet in Chicago. Ohio Wesleyan and Baldwin-Wallace at Berea. Western Reserve and Syracuse play in Syracuse, and Wilmington and Kentucky State Tennessee A. and I. State college.

The "Praying Colonels" of Centre, beaten 28 to 6 two weeks ago by Miami, battle the Miami University of Cincinnati team Saturday night in the Queen City. Other Saturday frays are afternoon events.

On the program are Heidelberg at Wooster, Oberlin at Denison, Kenyon at Otterbein and Ohio Northern at Wittenberg in Ohio conference contests. Bowling Green at Ball State Teachers, Hiram at Westminster, Case at Carnegie Tech, Butler at Ohio university, Western Michigan at Toledo, Capital at Bluffton, Kent State at Miami, Dayton at Tennessee, and Miami's naval radio unit at DePauw. Loyola, Carroll and Xavier meet Sunday afternoon in Cincinnati.

Dayton, the state's leader with three straight victories and 99 points against two for the foe, appears to have the week-end's toughest assignment against the vaunted Vols of Tennessee, who last week tuned up for the contest with the Flyers by smacking down the Fordham Rams by 40 to 14.

SNATCHES OF SPORTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 9—There hasn't been any great drop in attendance at Belmont park since the trains stopped running, and off-the-trail Rockingham has decided business is good enough they won't have to cut purses after all... Apparently it takes more than lack of transportation to discourage a guy who thinks he can beat the races.

Although it was the first time in years that Ford Frick, National league prexy, had a chance to help celebrate a world series victory, he didn't join in the fun after the Cards won. He was home, sick in bed.

Today's Guest Star—John P. Carmichael, Chicago Daily News: "The Cardinals went out of New York on a plain, ordinary railroad train, a fact that New York probably wouldn't believe. Nobody would have been surprised if they'd gone via magic carpet or disappeared from Yankee stadium in a cloud of smoke."

One-Minute Sports Page—Lou Little figures the way the football rules committee will settle that argument about Harvard's tricky shift depends on what the spinning fullback does. If he just spins and doesn't shift with the rest, it probably will be ruled an illegal move to draw the opposition offside... George Manoukian of Hamden, Conn., suggests that the government should take over the Cardinals—because they possess a great deal of scrap.

George Treadwell, a Memphis golfer, has come up with the stunt of making an even-par score for nine holes without parring a single hole. He turned in three birdies, one eagle and five bogies. Just to make it more confusing, George shot seven pars and two bogies on the second nine.

St. Mary Gridders Favored To Defeat Forest 11 Today

St. Mary school was dismissed at noon today to give students a chance to attend the St. Mary-Forest game at 3 p. m. this afternoon on Forest's home field.

Coach Eugene Fetter indicated last night that the only change in the St. Mary line-up would be Bob Huber in at tackle in place of Bill Lesser.

Both Coach Fetter and Rev. Fr. Francis Lutmer, assistant pastor of St. Mary and assistant to Fetter in coaching the Irish eleven, indicated St. Mary's chances for a victory over Forest were good.

Today's game is the first of the season in which the Irish opponents were not heavy favorites to win. Both Crestline and Tiffin Calvert are schools having about 100 more boys in high school from which to build a football team.

Starr Brothers Veteran Battery Combination

By The Associated Press

CENTRALIA, Ill., Oct. 9—The Cooper brothers battery of the St. Louis Cardinals has won most of the plaudits recently but the Starr brothers of Centralia have been at the business longer.

Ray Starr, veteran Cincinnati Reds pitcher, hurled for a local all-star ball team against the colored Giants recently and back of the plate receiving was his brother, Verne, his battery-mate for many years. The Starr brother-act dissolved in 1926 when Ray advanced into faster competition. Ray didn't have any trouble beating the Giants, 9 to 5.

BUCKEYE COACH NOT SUPERSTITIOUS, BUT CHEWS GUM FOR LUCK

Brown Figures It'll Take Plenty of Chewing To Help Win Saturday.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 9—There may be an iota of truth in the report war conditions are to blame for the chewing gum shortage — but the more logical explanation is that it was caused by Paul E. Brown, coach of Ohio State university's Bucks.

Brown insists he isn't superstitious—that black cats, walking under ladders and No. 13 mean nothing to him. He also declares it isn't superstition that makes him the nation's No. 1 chewing gum consumer while his boys are out there battling.

The Buck pigskin tutor, as the opening whistle blows, "peels" a stick of gum and starts chewing. If fortune favors the Ohios, he sticks with that stick. But, at the least turn of the tide, out goes that one and he starts on another. If the opposition starts a sustained drive, or his team needs a break of some kind, he changes gum again.

"No, I'm not superstitious," he says, "but you'd be surprised how often our luck changes for the better when I change 'chews.'"

He was well into the fifth package last Saturday when the final shot halted the Indiana game, and he declared today he was hoarding an even larger supply for Saturday's contest with Southern California.

"Those Trojans are boasting they have the fastest backfield in the country," Brown said. "I will probably need a good supply of gum to stop 'em."

Brown declared the Indiana scrap, won by Ohio 32-21, "was a much tougher game than it appeared from up in the stands." He said the Bucks had been sluggish in practice all week until yesterday afternoon's final workout, as a result of bumps and bruises suffered against the Hoosiers.

Only one line-up change is in prospect for the Bucks against the Trojans, Dante Lavelli taking over the end berth filled the last two weeks by Don Steinberg, who was hurt last Saturday and will see little if any action this week.

Brown said he was much impressed by the Southern Cal array of talent, and that he looked for the toughest kind of a game Saturday.

A crowd of about 60,000 is expected to witness the fray.

Trojans Practice on Scattered Fields

By The Associated Press

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 9—Southern California's Trojans may have their football troubles (they've lost one and tied one so far), but they're certainly taking all transportation problems in stride. They left Los Angeles last Wednesday, worked out in San Francisco Thursday, played at Seattle Saturday, practiced at Fargo, N. D., Monday, reached Chicago Tuesday for three more days of drills and will play at Columbus, O., Saturday.

REVERSES DAMAGE SUIT

By The United Press

HELENA, Mont. — A district court jury recently awarded $5,000 damages to a postoffice robbery suspect who was held for eight hours without a warrant by the local sheriff, but the state supreme court reversed the decision. The high court held that although the man had been ... the damages were excessive in view of the fact he was later convicted of the crime.

MARKET OFF TO FAST START

List Runs into Some Profit-taking After Thursday's Million Share Day.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 9 — Bullish contingents continued the offensive in today's market but they had to contend with a little more short selling and profit taking on Thursday's first 1,000,000-share rally of the year.

The list got off to a fast start, with sizeable blocks changing hands. Dealings later slowed and initial gains of fractions to better than a point were reduced and minus marks were in evidence here and there near the fourth hour.

Sentiment still was buoyed by the most optimistic war outlook and tax prospects.

Major markets will recess Monday for the Columbus day celebration.

Among stocks numerous new tops for 1942 or longer were recorded. These included N. Y. Central, General Motors, Standard Oil (N. J.), and General Electric. Supported were American Telephone, Bethlehem, Westinghouse, Eastman Kodak, Sears Roebuck and U. S. Gypsum.

Oils again were active in reflection of the move to boost crude prices.

EARLY GRAIN GAINS WIPED OUT LATER

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 9 — Grain prices derived only temporary strength today from upward revision of ceilings on various types of flour and early gains of fractions to about a cent a bushel were soon wiped out. Losers ranging up to almost a cent were posted.

Failure of floor brokers to expand and trade expectations that the government crop report to be released after the close would contain large estimates of cereal production caused some of the late selling, brokers said.

Cleveland Milk Supply Shortage Is Predicted

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9 — A "barely sufficient" supply of fresh milk for greater Cleveland during late autumn and winter months was sighted today by the Milk Producers Federation of Cleveland.

Secretary Carlton F. Christian said: "The supply of milk will be barely sufficient to meet the demands of bottled milk and sweet cream, leaving nothing over for manufactured dairy products such as cheese, ice cream, and evaporated milk."

Christian emphasized this situation did not mean any one would go without fresh milk, or without cheese and ice cream, since outside milk supplies were available in the manufacture of the latter two products.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Art and Medicine

"WHEN I hear someone talk about art I reach for my gun." So spoke one of the leading protagonists of the new order in Europe in order to display a German junker's contempt for all the evidences of the old life of Europe of the last 500 years. Thank heaven, in the art galleries, libraries and museums they have been able to save a little of the record of that old life, although how much of the cathedrals and public buildings which most especially showed that record will remain is a thought to make the heart sick.

Some of the best ideas of what we know about the health and disease conditions, the life of the physician, and of the priest-physician of the middle ages has been preserved in the stone carvings of the Gothic cathedrals.

Art has often inspired medical discovery and medical life has often inspired art.

We have the authentic anecdote of Charcot, the great French neurologist, that he once saw a human face and head sculptured on the pillar of a cathedral. It was drawn in a grotesque spasm, to one side. Charcot had never seen any patient with such a condition, but the artist had represented what he saw so faithfully that Charcot began to note what muscles were involved in the paralysis and finally made notes for a description of "glosso-labial hemispasm." Later on he found a patient with the exact similar condition, but until the patient turned up he used to take his students to the church to study the statue.

Ribera, the Spanish artist, has a famous painting in the Louvre. It represents a smiling boy whose appearance charms the spectator at once. But when one examines the feet closely, one sees that there is a deformity, with only the toes of the right foot resting on the ground. The arm is tucked in under the armpit in a state of paralysis, and to show how accurate the artist was, the model had evidently lost the power of speech, because there is a note in his left hand reading, "Give me alms for the love of God." Now neurologists have only within a short time known that it is paralysis on the right side that gives aphasia and loss of speech.

Not all artists were quite so successful in pleasing their medical critics. There is a famous picture of Raphael's called the "Transfiguration," and he has represented a young man in the foreground in a state of ecstasy, or beginning convulsions, but while it may impress lay spectators, the position and movements of the body have brought many criticisms from medical men, as they are replete with contradictions. Thus Sir Charles Bell, famous for his eponym on Bell's facial paralysis, remarked that of the thousands of positions which may be assumed during a convulsion, Raphael chose the one which never occurs.

Bell's facial paralysis has many times been depicted from the times of the Incas of Peru on down.

Today we have developed a large group of artists who do nothing but medical illustrating. They take a gruelling training in anatomy to fit themselves for this work. And in many cases their work is of extreme beauty and artistry.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

THE trap door opened in the ceiling of the hideaway basement, and at that instant Carolyn's eyes opened also, but Miss Whitlock and I had intentionally arranged ourselves in front of her as she lay on the floor, so that she did not see Gus lowering the emergency cot to Dicky.

The door closed noiselessly, and Dicky and my father brought the cot over.

Soon Carolyn was lying on the couch, and Miss Whitlock drew a blanket over her.

"Don't talk yet," the nurse said to Carolyn. "I want you to drink something first. You fainted, you know, and you'll have to wait a few minutes before you get back to normal."

For a wonder, Carolyn obeyed without question and docilely sipped the draught, then lay back against the pillow.

"I'll tell you when you may ask questions," the nurse told her, answering the appeal in her eyes. I knew the minutes must have seemed years to the girl before Miss Whitlock, after testing her pulse and breathing, said, "You may talk now, but don't try to sit up yet."

Carolyn looked at me with a terrible appeal in her eyes.

"Did I dream it," she asked, "or did Mr. Spencer say — say that man was as good as dead?"

I turned to my father, and he spoke with quiet certainty.

"That is what I said, Carolyn."

"Oh! oh!" she cried, in exactly the tone she had used before she swooned.

Loathes Young Gangster

She must have loved the young gangster, after all, I thought.

"Please believe me, child, I am truly sorry for you," I said, "I did not realize you loved him."

She flung her hands away from her face and stared at me.

"Love him!" she exclaimed. "Love him? I loathe him, and I can't be sorry he's going to die or be imprisoned for life. I can't, I tell you. I'm glad, glad!"

There was something so terrifying in her ghoulish joy that I involuntarily shrank away from her.

"Well, I'm glad to know you are not in love with him," I said. "Now lie back and rest a bit. We'll talk about this a little later."

As I turned away she flung out a hand and caught mine.

"You must listen to me," she said. "There's something I must do right away."

"Presently, presently," Miss Whitlock said with quiet authority. "You must lie still for five minutes. Then, if your reactions are all right, as I think they will be, you may sit up and say anything to Mrs. Graham you wish, providing—"

She stopped, and Carolyn finished her sentence.

"Providing I keep a civil tongue in my head, I suppose you mean," she said. "Don't worry! I know when I'm up against a stone wall."

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, Oct. 10

A DIFFICULT and trying day is predicted with much to test the temper as well as the powers of reserve, discretion, moderation and sagacity. From many directions comes a challenge to such virtues. Extravagance and various forms of indulgence may be carried to extremes by love of luxury or other acts of indiscretion, either in business or in social matters. With caution and wisdom there are prospects of benefits from superiors.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which they are liable to be tested from many directions, business, financial, social and domestic. This may come from a proclivity to overindulgences. Extravagance may lead to regrets, penalties and piqued pride. With moderation, high principle and purpose there might be a fair degree of progress, with superiors or employers assisting.

A child born on this day might be able to enjoy a useful, progressive and worthy life if taken in hand early in life for inculcation into proper restraints, moderation and modesty in all its life contacts.

The estimated number of daily workers and visitors at Rockefeller Center in New York is 151,000, or more than the population of all but 51 cities in the United States.
